ACCUSE 3 IN DEATH OF CHILD

Doctor, Druggist and Clerk Charged With Criminal Neglect Over Prescription

A doctor, druggist and drug clerk were charged in Roxbury court today with manslaughter in causing the death of a six-months-old baby by criminal negligence in connection with a prescription for the infant containing laudanum.

The physician is Dr. Arthur Berkowitz of No. 2 Hutchins street, who wrote the prescription. He is connected with a baby hygiene station in Savin street, Roxbury, where the prescription was written.

The druggist is Maurice Brody, proprietor of the Brody Drug Company, No. 2218 Washington street, Roxbury, where the prescription was filled.

The drug clerk is William O'Neil, registered pharmacist and clerk for Brody. He filled the prescription after consulting Brody.

The little victim was Ethel Roach, six months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Roach of No. 6 Alpine terrace.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

All defendants pleaded not guilty and were held for continued hearing May 3.

The baby died February 7 at the Infants' Hospital, to which it was brought the day before after several doses of the prescription had been administered.

An inquest was held late in March before Judge Palmer, who presided at today's Roxbury court session and who filed a report on the inquest with the Superior Court today.

Judge Palmer's report says that Mrs. Roach brought her baby to the Savin street baby hygiene station February 5 for advice as to food. She saw Dr. Solomon H. Rubin and Dr. Berkowitz, in charge of the station. She asked Dr. Rubin to prescribe for the baby's cough. Dr. Rubin referred her to Dr. Berkowitz, suggesting a medicine containing paregoric.

CLAIM LAW VIOLATED.

Dr. Berkowitz, the report says, wrote a prescription and signed Dr. Rubin's name. The medicine suggested by Dr. Rubin to Dr. Berkowitz was harmless to babies, but Dr. Berkowitz, the report adds, in writ-

Exploded 3 Bombs in Ball Park

Chicago, April 23.—Three bombs were exploded at the Chicago American League's club grounds, shattering lights in the grandstand and windows in nearby houses.

Thomas Healy, night watchman, sitting in the office, was thrown from his chair by the force of the explosion, but not injured.

The bombing was attributed to labor trouble.

BRAVES-PHILLIES GAME CALLED OFF

The second game of the series between the Braves and the Phillies, scheduled for this afternoon, was called off shortly after 11 o'clock this morning on account of the rain.

Although this is the first game to be called off owing to inclement weather since the season started, players on both clubs welcomed the rest.

HESSELGREN JURY DISAGREES

The jury in the case of Fred Hesselgren, seventy, charged with second degree murder, today reported a disagreement to Judge John F. Brown in Superior Court. The jurors were discharged and the prisoner was remanded to jail to await another trial.

Hesselgren was accused of stabbing to death Felix Lagg, a wrestler, whom he claims was making an attack on his sixty-year-old wife at their home, No. 286 Amory street, Jamaica Plain. The murder occurred Christmas Eve.

RIVALS MEET GAS CUT BY STANDARD OIL CO.

New York, April 23.—Texas Oil Companies and the Gulf Refining Company today met the reduction of one cent a gallon in the tank wagon prices of gasoline and kerosene announced last week by the Standard Oil Company of New York, the decreases being effective in New York and New England.

FIRE CHIEF ACCUSED AS SPOONER

Wellesley Patrolman Drags Man From Unlighted Automobile

Wellesley, April 23.—Fire Chief John P. Doyle will appear before the Wellesley Board of Selectmen in a private hearing tonight to answer the charges of spooning in an automobile.

A week ago, while patroling in an automobile, Patrolman David Gallery, of the Wellesley police department, saw from Cliff road, the dim shape of an unlighted automobile, parked beneath a large pine tree in an open space at the side of the road.

Leaving his car, he found a large automobile, which had been backed around and pointed toward the road. He opened the door, and dragged out the first person he touched.

DRAGGED FROM AUTO.

Turning his pocket-torch on the man, it is charged, he found him to be Fire Chief John P. Doyle. The flashlight also revealed a blushing young girl. The girl is understood to be well known in Wellesley, and the daughter of a prominent business man. Chief Doyle insisted he was merely sitting in his car.

Miss Florence J. Frost, twenty-four-year-old daughter of Sumner W. Frost of No. 199 Weston road, Wellesley, today appeared as a champion of Fire Chief Doyle. She said she was in the chief's auto a week ago. She and the fire chief, she asserted, were talking business.

Miss Frost was graduated from Wellesley High School in 1913 and now keeps books in the Perkins garage, Wellesley, which her father owns. She said:

"I am absolutely innocent of any wrongdoing with Chief Doyle. He is an honorable man. A man can sit in his own automobile, can't he?

"Whoever says the lights of the auto were out tells a lie.

"We were talking business. Chief Doyle does work for my father in connection with father's garage. That is how I became acquainted with him.

"Chief Doyle has enemies who want to get him. I have some, too, in a social way."

Chief of Police Harry Kingsbury

FIREMAN IS HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

Timothy J. Keefe, thirty-one, a fireman attached to Grove Hall engine house, was struck by an automobile operated by Simon Liverman of No. 75 Bower street, Roxbury, while crossing Washington street, Dorchester, today. He is at City Hospital on the danger list, with scalp wounds and possible fracture of the skull. Keefe lives at No. 29 Bowdoin street, Dorchester.

RUSSIA SEEKS PART IN NAVAL PARLEYS

Geneva, April 23 (By International News Service).—Soviet Russia today offered to participate in the Naval Disarmament Conference summoned by the League of Nations to extend the Washington Conference agreements to non-signatory powers. The offer was contained in a note from George Tichitcherin, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, at Moscow.

SLAYS WIFE, MOTHER OF 7; KILLS SELF

Camden, N. J., April 23.—John Krouse, Atlantic City ice cream manufacturer, who shot and killed his wife last night and then sent a bullet through his own head, died today. Krouse had separated from his wife, living in Atlantic City with his seven children while she remained here with relatives. The shooting followed an argument over the signing of papers in connection with the sale of property.

BURRILL FACING FRAUD TRIAL

Following is the list of eighteen men indicted in connection with the exploitation of the Boston-Montana Corporation mining stock:

CHARLES L. BURRILL, president of the American Discount Corporation, No. 40 Court street; residence, No. 29 Pinckney street; member of the Governor's Council and for five years State Treasurer for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

WILLIAM ROBERT MONTGOMERY, of Lexington, well known in Boston and New York banking circles and directing head of the American Discount Corporation.

FRANCIS SULLIVAN, a Boston promoter.

NATHANIEL E. FLANDERS of Boston.

A. MELENDEZ of Revere, secretary of the American Discount Corporation.

U. S. SPY WITNESS AT "RED" TRIAL

(By the Associated Press.)

St. Joseph, Mich., April 23.—Two other Department of Justice aides and Francis Morrow, who as agent K-97, attended the raided Communist Paryt Convention near here last August, were summoned as witness today in the trial of Charles E. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, charged with violation of Michigan's criminal syndicalism law.

Morrow, regarded by the State as its star witness, previously related part of his story at the trial of William Z. Foster, of Chicago. His testimony in the present trial is expected to be more voluminous.

HARRY G. PORCH of Boston and Reading.

JUDGE GEORGE GALLUP, formerly of the Circuit Court of Michigan, secretary and director of the Boston Montana Corporation.

ROBERT M. CURRIER, broker, of No. 85 Water street; indicted in December, 1921, for alleged fraudulent promotion of a product called "Fam-O"; residence, No. 14 Chestnut place, Jamaica Plain. He is treasurer and director of the Babson-Dow Manufacturing Company, director in the Daggett Chocolate Company and secretary and director of the firm of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc.

H. CARLETON SLACK, director of the Allen-Slack Company, No. 68 Devonshire street; president of the Peerless Mining Company and director of the Eureka Croesus Mining Company.

SETH T. GANO, No. 15 Exchange street.—Gano is an officer or director in the following corporations: Gauley Coal Land Company, American Coal By-Products Corporation, American Discount Corporation, Belmont (Mass.) Savings Bank, Cherry River Coal Mining Company, Common Street Associates, Corporation for Discount, Goshen Hole Irrigation Company, International Alcohol Corporation, New Metals Process Company, Ontario Mining Lands Trust, Orchard Street Associates, Rolfe Coal Mining Company, Saxman Coal & Coke Company, Western Coke & Collieries, Inc.

All of these men have been notified of their indictment on four charges, as follows:

1. Conspiracy to defraud the Montana Southern Railway Company.
2. Conspiracy to defraud the Boston-Montana Divide Company.
3. Conspiracy to defraud the

C. L. Burrill

W. R. Montgomery

Boston-Montana Milling & Power Company.

4. Conspiracy to defraud the Boston-Montana Corporation.

Ten of the eighteen men, it was stated, will appear for arraignment this afternoon. George H. Lucey and David A. Marshall have been engaged as attorneys to represent the persons indicted.

The first batch of eight indictments was said to be merely the forerunner of a broader and more searching probe of transactions in the handling of mining stock and bonds which are reported to have resulted in the loss of between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000 to investors, the majority of them New Englanders. Some of the most prominent men and women in Massachusetts subscribed liberally to Boston-Montana stock in sums ranging as high as $50,000. Hundreds of Greeks were ripped. Thousands of investors invested their entire savings, in curb speculation through bucketshops. This is said to be one of the most disgraceful features of the scandal.

The first crop of indictments resulted from bond and note transactions on the part of officials serving on interlocking directorates of Boston-Montana Corporation and subsidiary enterprises such as the railway power and milling and development companies.

CHARGE BIG SCANDAL.

Announcement today that District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien and Assistant District Attorney Maurice Caro had only just begun their investigation and that other phases will be submitted at a later session of the Grand Jury indicated a widening of the range of inquiry and the corralling of other defendants. Hope appeared to be entertained in official circles that some of the fourteen indicted might consent to turn State's evidence and assist the prosecution in getting at the bottom of what is considered one of the biggest financial scandals since the Fondi exposé.

Some weeks ago the Boston American predicted that criminal proceedings would follow the mass of civil actions which resulted in appointment of two ancillary receivers, injunction proceedings and other lawsuits due to the snarled affairs of Boston-Montana.

FRAUD IS CHARGED.

One of the blanket indictments is said to contain 300 pages. Conspiracy to commit fraud is the general charge against all defendants. Attorney John R. McVey will appear in court today as counsel for the five officials of the American Discount Corporation, and Attorney Thomas Hogan is counsel for the officials of the Boston-Montana Corporation.

Some of the defendants may not be arraigned for days owing to residence in other States. President Allen of the Boston-Montana Corporation lives in Butte, Mont. Hamilton Allen is busy between New York and Toronto.

The prosecution claims that President Allen started a brokerage firm known as the Allen-Slack Company, with offices at No. 68 Devonshire street, and that this firm acted as the fiscal agent for the various subsidiary companies which had offices adjoining. Recently the Allen-Slack Company removed to No. 15 Exchange street.

BORROWED $15,000.

This firm is alleged to have borrowed $15,000 from the American Discount Corporation and pledged as security for that loan bonds representing Boston-Montana Corporation securities amounting to $2,500,000. William R. Allen is a director in the American Discount Corporation in addition to being president of Boston-Montana Corporation. Officials of the American Discount Corporation claim they procured the collateral in the regular banking manner and that they will surrender the Boston-Montana bonds as soon as their rate of interest is paid. The receivers brought injunction proceedings to restrain the American Discount Corporation from disposing of the bonds.

It would appear, from the facts that have filtered through to date, of the conspiracy charges. The interlocking directorates are an element in the government's case, it is said. The Boston-Montana Corporation was originally capitalized for $25,000,000. The parent corporation and subsidiary companies were all incorporated in Montana. The transactions complained of in the indictment did not occur until former Lieutenant Governor Allen of Montana moved his offices to Boston.

Priest Who Rapped Spanish Queen's Dress Silenced

London, April 23.—The Bishop of Madrid has placed an inhibition on further preaching by Father Calasans of the Holy Hearts Order because in a sermon he denounced a costume worn by the Queen of Spain, according to a Madrid dispatch to the Daily Express.

The priest called the Queen's dress "shocking and immoral."

IRISH WOMEN WEAKENED BY HUNGER STRIKE

Dublin, April 24.—Mrs. Maude Gonne McBride, Nellie Ryan and Mrs. O'Callaghan, three Republicans on hunger strike, were reported today to be in a weakened condition but still holding out stoutly. Miss MacSwiney, sister of the Lord Mayor of Cork is again on hunger strike, but so far has suffered no ill effects.

The Free State government refuses to give out official information regarding thewomen hunger strikers. It offered to release all the women prisoners if they would consent to adopt constitutional methods in the future instead of making actual warfare against the State, but they refused.

ing the prescription used the technical name for laudunum.

The prescription, as written, indicated a narcotic medicine of maximum for adults and poisonous and deadly for infants.

The prescription did not comply with the State and Federal laws, as it failed to contain the narcotic requirements, including the number of the prescribing physician and the age or address of the patient.

PEON CAMP JUDGE OUSTED IN FLORIDA

Tallahassee, Fla., April 23.—Governor Cary A. Hardee has decided to remove from office County Judge Benjamin Franklin Willis and Sheriff James Robert Jones, the two Leon County officials charged with wholesale leasing of convicts to the Putnam Lumber Company.

An order calling for the immediate ousting of the two officials was drawn up by the Governor issued today.

A pathetic story of the death and burial of Martin Tabert, the North Dakota boy alleged to have been the victim of a brutal lashing in a Florida convict camp, came to light today.

STEAM TRAWLER IS ASHORE AT HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., April 23.—Aground at the entrance of Halifax harbor, the French steam trawler Joseph Vandevalle is weathering her second plight of this month. Three weeks ago the ship's boilers exploded, killing four of the crew. She was fitted here with new boilers and sailed for the fishing banks only to run ashore. Three attempts by tugs to pull her from the sand and rocks were unsuccessful. The crew is still aboard.

GUY HAM TO ADDRESS RECIPROCITY CLUB

The Reciprocity Club of America, Boston Section, will hold its monthly meeting and dinner tomorrow evening at the City Club. There will be a reception at 6 o'clock and dinner at 6:30. One of the features of the evening will be the "Adjourned Town Meeting," under the direction of Guy A. Ham.

POLICE DRIVE ON TAXICAB BANDITS

New York, April 23.—In an effort to check taxicab banditry, Police Captain Devery today ordered patrolmen in his Greenwich Village jurisdiction to "keep moving" all cabs or private automobiles seen standing in front of drug stores, jewelry shops, restaurants and subway or elevated train entrances, with motors running and a man at the wheel.

"TRUSTY" KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Lancaster, Ohio, April 23.—Two bullets from the pistol of Sheriff Charles Sperthy frustrated the attempt of two "trusties" to escape from the county jail here. Trafford Ellimard attacked the sheriff as he passer in a corridor. Roy Babbit, the other trustee, struck him over the head wit a milk bottle. The pair dashed for the jail office. The sheriff fired and they fell, one dead and the other wounded.

SUSPENDS ILLINOIS PROHIBITION HEAD

Washington, April 23.—Acting Prohibition Director Roscoe Andrews of Illinois was suspended today by Commissioner Haynes pending an investigation into the case of the Grommes Ulrich Distillery. The distillery firm was recently dissolved and liquor valued at $500,000 was distributed among stockholders.

KILL BILL TO MAKE ALL TURKS OVER 25 WED

Constantinople, April 23.—The Angora Assembly has rejected the bill introduced recently by the Deputy for Erzerum, providing that all Turks aged twenty-five must marry and that each couple must have a child every three years. By this measure the Deputy had hoped the population of Asia Minor might be increased from 3,000,000 to 48,000,000.

Flying Sheriff to Hunt Aerial Bootleggers

Temple, Tex., April 23.—Patrolling the air to prevent the landing of bootlegging airplanes from Mexico, is the duty of Herbert Kindred, who has just been appointed flying deputy sheriff of this county by Sheriff Albert Bonds.

It is stated that the aerial liquor runners and smugglers have been doing a brisk business in the rural districts of the country.

FIGHTS TO KEEP MATE'S ESTATE

Hammond's property. The court found he conveyed the property to her while sane, but decided she wrongfully retained a $5,000 matured endowment insurance policy.

It was alleged that Dr. Hammond was adjudged insane through fraud and undue influence. Although found sane by the Psychopathic Hospital he was held in an asylum until freed by Judge Frost, through the activity of Solomon E. Aaron of No. 60 State street.

"Dr. Hammond was insane," said Mrs. Hammond today. "Nine alienists in Hartford, Ct., where he was a patient, found him insane. That is proof enough. He may have had periods of sanity just as any other insane person does.

"If he were penniless now, he would not have a guardian. Philip Hendrick of Beacon street is his guardian and he is with his daughter, Mrs. Winthrop P. Fillebrown. I won in court over the question of the property. Dr. Hammond was found to be sane when he conveyed it.

"I am not the kind of woman that Solomon Aaron and others imply. I am related to two very prominent Boston men, Thomas P. Beal, president of the Second National Bank, and Amos Little of the Little Building."

In the court hearings it was testified that Dr. Hammond grew emaciated and feeble after his marriage to Sally Lawson Beal ten years ago. He was then seventy and she was thirty-eight. He told James H. Shedd of Arlington, a friend, he was leading a miserable life.

Dr. Hammond was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation in December, 1917, and released. He was then taken, as a voluntary patient, he believed, to the Hartford Retreat, an insane asylum in Connecticut. Later Mrs. Hammond had him examined by Connecticut alienists and he was made an inmate under restraint.

refused to discuss the subject. It is understood he and Doyle are close friends.

Doyle, who is a married man and the father of a daughter engaged to be married, has been chief of the Wellesley fire department since 1914, when his election by the selectmen was vigorously attacked by the townspeople, who opposed Doyle on the ground that he was a Newton man and not a Wellesley man.

Dr. Warren A. Rodman, a member of the Board of Selectmen, justified the appointment of Doyle by saying Doyle was the best man available for the position.

Chief Doyle is secretary of the Fire Chiefs' Club of Massachusetts, and the winner over thousands of competitors in an essay contest conducted by Fire Protection, a technical publication. The subject of the essay was "Private Plant Fire Protection." He is one of the best known fire fighters in Massachusetts.

FIND 400 KNIVES IN CELLS; CRUSH 'JAIL REPUBLIC'

Susquehanna, Pa., April 23.—Fred calls in the Eastern State Penitentiary has disclosed several hundred different sorts of weapons and large quantities of narcotics. More than 400 knives were found. Thirty-three convicts have been removed to prevent trouble.

Exclusion of all visitors, the locking up of all prisoners and the re-ing up of all prisoners of the Western Penitentiary at Rockview of "dangerous disturbers" has restored the morale of the guards and re-established order, J. Washington Logue, secretary of the board of inspectors, said today.

Following the transfer of the committee of convicts, otherwise known as the "Four Horsemen," who Mr Logue said, had usurped the duties of the wardens and guards, and were responsible for the reign of terror, order was quickly restored.

One of the four leaders was said to have been the head of a prison narcotic drug peddling ring.

"We have got out of an ugly mess without bloodshed, and we will never get into such another entanglement of prisoner government," Mr. Logue said. "The 'Four Horsemen,' under the guise of a welfare committee, representing the 'Republic of Prisoners,' had the run of the institution all day and until after midnight. It was easy under such misrule for the brains of the conspiracy to peddle his dope in his rounds made by him every night."

BRITAIN ACTS TO CURB RUM SHIPS

London, April 23.—The Foreign Office today issued new instructions to the British West Indian governments for placing obstacles in the way of liquors smuggling from British soil into the United States.

Great Britain insists ship registration be made more stringent and that all bills of lading be scrutinized more carefully in future.

If the United States insists upon a 16-mile limit and acts outside of the 3-mile zone, Great Britain probably will consider at an international incident calling for patrols, but they believe the use of American destroyers along the 3-mile limit would make smuggling impossible.

JEWS AND ARABS IN EGYPT CLASH

Cairo, Egypt, April 23.—Reports from Palestine describe a serious situation arising among the Arabs on account of the decision to prosecute the organizers of the recent election boycott. The Jews are dissatisfied with the stringent economic situation arising from unemployment, and there have been several clashes between the Jews and the Arabs.

KIDNAPED GIRL NOT YET FREE OF AFGHANS

London, April 23.—Although all doubts as to the safety of Molly Ellis have been removed, the fifteen-year-old girl, kidnaped by Afghan tribesmen in the Punjab, has not yet returned to British-controlled territory. A message from Simla says that negotiations for her release are in progress.

Heaviest Postman Dead

Philadelphia, April 23.—Search of Pierce, fifty-eight, said to be the heaviest mail carrier in the United States is dead at his home here. He weighed 324 pounds.

FOUR DIE WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling

THE CONGREGATION WEEPS WHEN CANTOR JOSEF SHLISKY sends his high G trilling and soaring to the roof of the synagogue in a melancholy chant. But Joe doesn't cry for his voice makes it possible for him to deposit $15,000 in the bank every year.

EL MOLEI RACHMINI

The word Cantor, as applied to the Jewish singer, is derived from Chantor — one who chants. The history of the Jews is a record of melancholy. The early Jewish chantors, or cantors, were the Semitic branch of the family of minstrels. The Jewish minstrel, in his chants, told the story of the race. Today, when Jews hear the tenor of the favorite cantors (most cantors are tenors) rising in a high note that becomes almost a wail, th y weep.

It is a complacent weeping, for the limousine waits without, and there are no pales in this country. The cantor himself, caught in the spell of his melancholy strain, sometimes finds tears streaming down his cheeks. But after the song the tears disappear. Good cantors get good money.

Cantor Josef Shlisky is the young [illegible] est and one of the two greatest cantors in America. He is here in Boston, the scene of his earliest triumphs, when he had Cantor Max Sacher of Chelsea for his choir chief. In those days Max took a considerable interest in Josef. These days he worshipfully introduces his former pupil as the Great Cantor, and Josef, from the top of the cantorial ladder, airily waves a greeting to Max.

Baseball Fan and Trained Boxer

Josef today is twenty-nine years old, five feet two tall, weighs 138 pounds, and what a bank account! In his quest after high G he has had an interesting and exciting career. Today the mechanics of his throat are the envy of all the other cantors. He shifts from low to high quicker than a Boston taxi driver. He is at once orthodox and paradox. Shlisky is one of the country's most rabid baseball fans. When the new Yankee Stadium in New York opened, he was among those present, and his $15,000 a year voice joined the others in reproof or acclaim, as the situation required. He's a trained boxer, can run ten miles at a good clip and swings a brutal mashie.

He was eleven years old in Kovsk, Poland, when he kissed mashikha good-bye and left for a few weeks in Austria with Cantor Moses Wolman of Warsaw. It was going to be just a trip, but after they were on their way, Wolman confided to the young warbler that he was being shanghaied. London was the destination. But at Antwerp they boarded a ship and twenty days later they disembarked at Canada. Within a week Josef was the star nightingale in Wolman's choir, getting a thin dime per solo. He wept as he sang. Who wouldn't, when the pay was only ten cents a chant?

A Canuck kid gave Josef a bicycle that had no tires. On this he journeyed far. When the bike broke down some weeks later Josef found himself in Scranton. En route he had chanted his way into three square meals a day. In Scranton he fell in with a concert manager who booked Josef into a few synagogue stands. Everything began to look rosy when the manager absconded with the bankroll left Scranton on the same train.

Gets the Hook at Amateur Show

Josef ran into an amateur night and did his stuff before a hundred hard-boiled miners who sat on hard cane chairs. The miners had finished a tough day underground and wanted to forget. In Hebrew Josef rendered El Molei Rachmini, compared to which Beethoven's funeral march is a joyous paean. The hook yanked Josef into temporary oblivion.

Josef became a garage sweeper. He cracked in a rag factory. He took a crack at the wool business, wholesale and retail. The high G couldn't clean garments, couldn't make toys, couldn't sell wool. So he went back to his first and his only real love. Today this pigmy of a minstrel is a giant who connects with earth with heaven by an escalator of velvet notes, sits on the front porch of America, puts $15,000 into a bank every year, waves his cane to Chaliapin and Hafix and brings up his three children to be devout, orthodox baseball fans.

And there are only two other cantors who make their singing pay any more than Shlisky. On Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, and the other is Eddie Cantor, who sings in the Shubert synagogues.

FATHER EXPECTS MRS. PRINCE TO WED

RESCUED AS PLANE IS SINKING

Aircraft Plunges Into Ocean Off Atlantic City; Woman Among Passengers

New York, April 23.—Four men and a woman, passengers and crew of a seaplane, forced down to the waters off Coney Island, were rescued by the marine police after a sixth member of the party, Robert Dewey, owner of the flying ship, swam 100 yards to shore and summoned aid.

The five were rescued after they had given up hope of succor. The police also saved the disabled craft.

The plane left Langley Field, Va., in company with the FL-2, Sunday morning, for New York. The two planes kept in sight of each other until they reached Atlantic City, where a landing was made.

A pump used to circulate gasoline aboard the FL-1 began to function badly after Atlantic City was left behind, and the FL-2 rapidly drew away. Pilot Rhoades, unfamiliar with the route, skimmed close to the waters, following the shore line and flying slowly.

Finally the plane was forced down a considerable distance off Coney Island. Wind and waves sent it gradually toward the shore, and finally Dewey, one of the passengers, slid overboard and swam for aid.

The woman passenger was Mrs. Muriel Boggs of Detroit. J. Herbert Pasmus of New York and two mechanics were the others aboard.

Thief Robs and Drugs Actress

Mystery surrounds the robbery and drugging of Miss Zoe Garland, twenty years old, an actress, whose unconscious form was found on the sidewalk before Michel Yokina's dancing school on Seventy-second street, New York. Miss Garland said she had been struck and robbed of $200. The man who gave the alarm supplied a fictitious name and address. He is being sought by the police.

MRS. PRINCE 'MAY WED' THAYER

Her Father Admits It, but Says Her Divorce Had No Remarriage Motive

"It is quite possible that my daughter might marry Mr. Thayer.

W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, admitted that much at the Hotel Vendome today concerning his daughter, Mrs. Frederick H. Prince, who has arrived back in Boston from Paris and the French divorce courts.

Mrs. Prince, according to reports is soon to become the wife of Eugene V. R. Thayer, who was divorced in Paris the same day as the Princes were.

Mr. Harding also said, with excusable paternal pride:

"My daughter is a very good looking woman, and I shall not be surprised if she should marry again."

PREPARED STATEMENT.

Quite anxious was Mr. Harding to dispel any impression, however, that Mrs. Prince secured a divorce merely to wed again.

He received the interviews with a prepared statement, which read:

"My daughter's divorce proceedings were based upon abundant grounds and were not related to any prospective marriage.

"The question of another marriage is one for her future determination. All stories of an elopement are absurd and utterly unfounded."

To this was added the statement of Mrs. Prince's good looks and the presumption that she would marry again.

NO RE-MARRIED MOTIVE.

Further emphasizing the point that there was no remarriage motive back of the Prince divorce Mr. Harding went on:

"I do not wish the newspapers to convey the impression that my daughter secured her divorce with a view to remarrying. This is not so. Her divorce was for entirely different reasons.

"My daughter is free to marry whenever she pleases, so far as I am concerned.

"We all expect to move into the Beacon street house as soon as it is completed and resume our family life together."

Speaking again of the possibility of a second marriage, Mr. Harding observed:

"I would not presume to say what any woman might do if she so wishes."

SISTER WITH MRS. PRINCE.

He said that Mr. Thayer, who was a homeward passenger on the liner Paris, on which Mrs. Prince traveled with her baby, the baby's nurse, and Mrs. Prince's younger sister, Miss Margaret Harding, was very kind and helpful on the voyage over here.

"I met them at the boat, and we all went to the Hotel Belmont. Mr. Thayer is now in New York. My daughter and her baby and nurses are now with me in Boston."

He was asked whether Mr. Thayer would come to Boston. He replied:

"I would not presume to say, but it is possible."

Daughter of W. P. G. Harding, head of Boston Federal Reserve Bank and former New York bank president, who returned from Europe on the same ship. Both maintain secrecy as to their reported engagement, but her father admits she "is good looking and may wed again." Mrs. Prince is now in Boston and will live for the present with him. GANG SLAYS WHITE SLAVER

Dope Pedlar's Bullet-Riddled Body Found in New York Chinatown

New York, April 23.—The bullet riddled body of nineteen-year-old Carmine ("Blackie") Stello, known to the underworld as a white-slaver, dope pedlar and burglar, was discovered in the back yard of a shop in Chinatown today, amid evidence which, police say, tells a grim tale of gang revenge.

He had been dead for hours. In his head and chest were seven bullet wounds. His right hand clutched a small flashlight; his left an empty .25 calibre pistol shell. Nearby lay a .25 automatic with six exploded shells.

Police believe "Blackie" was double-crossed by members of his gang. As they reconstruct the story of his death, he was lured to the squalid areaway between Mott and Elizabeth streets, in the belief he was to be in on a "job." He was given the flashlight, and, while he stood with it in his right hand his companions backed away and showered him with bullets.

AMERICA READY TO STAND BACK OF CHESTER

Lausanne, April 23 (By the Associated Press).—The question of the Near Eastern oil fields, especially those covered by the Chester concession, is in the foreground today as the allied and Turkish delegations meet in another effort to draft a peace treaty acceptable to both sides.

France, it is believed, will insist on the rights accorded her in 1914 by the former Turkish government; and the British delegation has let it be known it will support the French claim.

Both Great Britain and France received the news of the Chester grant with unconcern—for the reason that they think the 1914 agreement gives her priority in territory covered by the concession and Great Britain because she is uncertain as to whether the region thus opened to American exploitation affects the mandated Irak territory in which lie the valuable Mosul fields.

Delegates understand the United States, through her representative, Joseph C. Grew, will continue to support the open door policy that she advocated at the previous Lausanne conference. It is also believed Minister Grew will defend, if necessary, the Chester concession in the event the American government decides it is not in violation of its adherence to a policy of equal rights for all nations.

As a legacy from the previous conversations the delegates have on their hands such troublesome questions as the legal rights of foreigners in Turkey, and the Ottoman debt. The allies hold that foreigners in Turkey should not be entirely under the jurisdiction of the Turkish courts, while the Angora spokesmen insist that special judicial privileges cast an unfavorable reflection on Turkey's sovereignty.

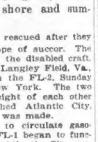
The allied spokesmen said they had the impression Turkey will seek to take advantage of fancied differences in the ranks of the allies.

The allies also expect Turkey to attempt to use to her own advantage French and British opposition to the Chester concession.

Developments have indicated Soviet Russia will decline to be eliminated as a factor in the present negotiations.

A Russian official stated authorized Russian representatives might come before the signing of the treaty and have something to say regarding the convention fixing the status of the Turkish Straits.

REVUE BY PUPILS OF HELEN M. ROCHE



Helen M. Roche

The annual music revue and dance of pupils of Miss Helen M. Roche, organist of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, and Strand Theatre, Lowell, will be conducted in the South Boston Municipal Building next Wednesday evening. Bobby Sawyer's Plantation Reveladers will assist. Among those who will entertain are Jane Loots, Lawrence Lester, Grace Freeman, Chester and Doris Hooper, Josephine Leonard, Eleanor Lee, George Sweeney, Dan Flood, Lillian Walsh, Edith Buchanan, Margaret Foley, Eleanor Phelan, Elinor Lynch, Ethel Haley.

PROBE DEATH OF 4 IN PLANE CRASH

Dayton, O., April 23.—A government investigation was begun into the cause of the crash of the Martin bomber, killing four persons and seriously injuring another. The plane which plunged into the big Miami river has been recovered. Experts are examining it to determine what caused the operator to suddenly lose control and plunge with his passengers. Pilots here believe that the bomber was carrying too many and was swamped in the heavy wind.

GERMANS FIRST TO PATENT WAR TANK

Washington, April 23.—The Patent Office here has discovered that Germany, four years before the British first used it on the battlefield, patented an armored tank in the United States. However, history records that when the British first played havoc with such a device on the battlefield it came as a stunning surprise to the German troops.

SKULL FRACTURE KILLS SO. END MAN

Finlay Chisholm of No. 29 Mayo street, South End, died at the City Hospital of a fractured skull. He was removed to the hospital from his home by the police after he was discovered unconscious on the floor of his room. How he suffered his injury is not known.

WOODHOUSE RAPS 'OLIGARCHY RULE'

Northampton, April 23.—The American people, supposed to have the freest and most democratic government in the world, are in reality "governed by a complex system of oligarchies," Professor James Woodhouse of Smith College said in an address today before the School of Politics and Government being conducted here by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters in co-operation with Smith College.

The groups in central control of both the major parties do not embody the ideals of real American democracy, Professor Woodhouse said.

"Forty-five years of power over the national government out of the last sixty years have completed the alliance between the special interests and the Republican party," he said. "And even the long lean years out of power since the Civil War have not been sufficient to purify the Democratic party of the cranker of special privilege."

McCORMACK SINGS FOR $50 IN BERLIN

Berlin, April 23.—John McCormack, the tenor, was tendered an ovation here when he sang in Philharmonic Hall. Five thousand German music lovers recalled him fifteen times to the platform. For the two numbers he sang he received 1,000,000 marks, or about $50. His last appearance in America netted him $5,000.

HACKETT TO PLAY FOR BRITISH ROYALTY

London, April 23.—James K. Hackett, the American actor, and Mrs. Hackett, now in Paris, have received a royal command to attend the reception to be given on the eve of the Duke of York's wedding in Buckingham Palace.

30,000 SEAMEN ASK INCREASE IN PAY

New York, April 23.—William Miller, business agent of the Sailors' Eastern and Gulf Association, announced today that the International Seamen's Union, on behalf of 30,000 Atlantic coast seamen, will this week submit demands for a new wage scale, effective May 1.

As a result of a general conference of international officials of the seamen the new wages asked are: deck carpenters, $85 a month; firemen, $80; able seamen, $70; ordinary seamen, $65.

The Marine Transport Workers' International Union has issued a general strike call, to take effect Wednesday.

A general demand for an increase of $20 a month for all, licensed and unlicensed men on ships, is demanded, and an increase of $20 a month for harbor workers receiving less than $100 is also demanded.

TEXAN DANCES 107 HOURS, 2 MINUTES

Dallas, Texas, April 23.—R. J. Newman, local athletic and World War veteran, quit the floor here at 3:52 o'clock this morning, having set a record of 107 hours and two minutes dancing.

He was allowed a fifteen-minute rest period each four hours of his endurance test, which started at 4:45 p. m., last Wednesday.

Locally it was declared this set a new world's record.

Washington, April 23.—So far as all outward evidence went, all of the last survivors of Washington's two endurance dancing contests, which began Wednesday night had taken the count.

Sometime after midnight Elsie Weber and William T. Farrell, both of Baltimore, who claimed to have danced ninety-six hours, continuously, disappeared unceremoniously from the hotel dance floor at Marlboro, Md., where they had been transported from here Saturday at midnight to continue the contest.

FIND BODY OF MAN ON B. & A. TRACKS

The body of an unidentified colored man, about thirty, was found on Track No. 4 of the Boston & Albany near the Albany street bridge by Towerman Ernest Thorpe today. There was a gaping wound in his scalp, causing the police to think he either fell from the bridge or was struck by a train.

The dead man is 5 feet 8 inches, weighs about 160 pounds and wore a yellow rain coat.

CHURCH AND HOUSES LOST IN FOREST FIRE

Lakewood, N. J., April 23.—Forest fires which burned over twenty square miles in Ocean County and destroyed property valued at $250,000 were extinguished early today by 500 volunteers. The First Methodist Church and several homes and buildings at Cedar Bridge were destroyed as well as many camps along the Metedeconk River.

AUTOS CRASH; ONE SMASHES DRUG STORE

The crash of two automobiles and a smash of broken glass in the show window of the Daley Drug Company at Harvard street and Aspinwall avenue, Brookline, aroused the neighborhood at 8 a. m. today.

Ex-Selectman James F. Quinn, living over the drug store, telephoned Brookline police there had been a collision.

Meanwhile, Elwyn R. Jaques of No. 422 Columbus avenue, whose car had been knocked into the drug store, had backed it out and was hot in pursuit of the "other fellow."

Later Jaques returned and told the police he had overtaken the other car on Huntington avenue and secured its registration number. The police say it is that of David P. Ingalls of No. 728 Commonwealth avenue.

Jaques said he was about to cross Harvard street when the Ingalls car hit his and then slid down Harvard street with lights snapped off and with no effort to ascertain damage.

When Jaques caught up with the Ingalls car, he told the police, Ingalls said:

"I thought I had the right of way and it wasn't my fault."

Brookline police reported later they had found Ingalls' car in a garage off St. Mary's street with a damaged bumper; also that Ingalls admitted having been in the collision and that he had three young men in the car at the time.

TWO BOY GUNMEN SOUGHT IN KILLING

Pawtucket, R. I., April 23.—Boy gunmen are being sought by the police in connection with the fatal shooting of Edward McLaughlin, forty years old, a grocery clerk, who was killed from ambush in an isolated section of Central Falls. The officers, however, are without a clew to the identity of the young bandits.

"CYMBELINE" TO BE GIVEN BY SOTHERN

New York, April 23.—E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe announce that they will produce Shakespeare's tragedy, "Cymbeline," at one of the Shubert Theatres here next season. "Cymbeline" has not been seen on the American stage in many years. Julia Marlowe acted Imogene in this drama during her first years on the stage. In bringing Cymbeline back to the stage Sothern and Marlowe are inaugurating the policy of producing each season one of the lesser known Shakespearean plays in addition to the more familiar ones already in their repertoire. In 1925 they plan to do "Measure for Measure."

Telegraph Briefs

Denver.—The Rocky Mountain region was covered with snow ranging in depth from nearly five inches in Denver to more than a foot in Cheyenne.

Seattle.—The steamer La Parisma collided with the barkentine Mary Winkleman early today off Slip Point.

Joliet, Ill.—Three convicts serving life terms for murder mixed their way to freedom today from the prison hospital. They lowered themselves by a rope to the yard, and then scaled the outer wall. They were Horace "Hi" Simmons, a notorious Chicago gunman; George Shider, also from Chicago, and Noble Dickinson.

RHODE ISLAND G. O. P. FACING LOSS OF STATE

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Providence, R. I., April 23.—Stories about Rhode Island political affairs, so shocking as to be almost unbelievable, are the daily topics of conversation. They run the gamut of social crimes from petty larceny to grand bribery and from blackmail to threats of capital violence. Democrats are the heroes in most instances and Republicans the bad actors. In a few cases cheap Democrats are the plied and pliant tools in the clutches of Republican villains.

There are many stories of graft and some of undue political pressure. There are stories of old bills being paid recently and there are stories about entertainment of lawmakers by interested parties and their agents which might suggest to hypercritical minds sudden and suspicious friendships.

Gov. Flynn.

Tomorrow will find both Senate sides lined up to resume battle with "no utter." the order of the day. There is not the slightest thinking of any compromise on give and take lines. The Republican majority is being held in line to prevent a retreat on any of the Democratic platform measures and the Democratic warriors are grimly determined that no Republican bills shall secure a right of way to the Governor's office.

GOVERNOR DETERMINED.

The appropriation bill never can be passed, it seems now, until Democratic measures are reported out of the committee on special legislation and voted upon either favorably or unfavorably.

The Democrats do not propose to let the Republicans reach the appropriation bill and then put the Senate out of business without first resurrecting the forty-eight-hour bill, the constitutional convention bill, the senatorial redistricting bill, the property qualification abolition bill and the maternity bill from the graveyard of the committee on special legislation and voting upon them.

One hears stories to the effect that working without pay and without mileage allowance, as they are now and would during a special session, certain Senators of the Republican party could not be expected to hold out in support of the committee's stand very long.

The Democrats are particularly open at Senators Grinnell, Cole and Hopkins. The former, running as an Independent, never would have been elected, they claim, without the Democratic indorsement he received, and he never would have received that backing, they say, if it had not been well understood by them he would vote for the policies which the voters favored.

FEAR PARTY'S RUIN.

This holding up of important public business by the truculing of the Republican Senators to the special interests, is beginning to get on the nerves of some of the more honorable Republican politicians.

From all that one hears, Rhode Island must be the rottenest State politically in the Union. There are some Republicans who admit that the only cure is the election of Democratic State officials and Democratic majorities in both branches of the General Assembly. The hands of a Democratic governor are tied if the Senate is controlled by the Republicans. Even on appointments the only ones he can make without the consent of the Senate are members of the barbers' commission.

NEWPORT CHIEF IS BEATEN IN FRACAS

Newport, R. I., April 23.—Chief of Police S. Tobin is nursing a broken nose and numerous bruises and George Pitman of No. 17 West Broadway is in jail, all of which is sequel to a beating given a young man by a woman, said to be Mrs. Pitman. The chief and Inspector Furey went to the Pitman home to arrest the woman on a charge of assault. She objected and [illegible] ing a bottle at the chief's head. He ducked, but failed to miss the husband's fist. Inspector Furey was bruised. The woman escaped.

"Eat Spinach," Beauty Secret of Latest "Perfect 34"

That was the advice given by Miss Martha Gonzales, who has been chosen the new American Venus.

Miss Gonzales is not so much a Venus after all as a Diana, she of the lissome figure and agile boyish grace.

How does she do it?

"By eating spinach once and sometimes twice a day," she replied.

She will be introduced to the fashion world as the modern Venus at the Masonic Fashion Exhibit on May 14.

4 PASSENGERS WAITED ON BY 45 STEWARDS

New York, April 23.—How would you like to be one of four first class passengers on an ocean liner, with forty-five stewards at your beck and call, with a full orchestra rendering two concerts daily for your benefit, with a barber, bartender and others to dance attendance on you?

That's what happened to the first class passengers arriving on the Red Star Liner Vesland from Antwerp. The passengers were:

F. B. Hoppin, of Duffy & Co., publishers; his sister, Miss Frances Hoppin; Rev. J. T. Mullen of Worcester, Mass., and Francis Bradley, a steamship agent of New York.

It was fine for the first cabin passengers; in fact, Mr. Hoppin said it seemed more like a cruise on a private yacht that might have cost $100,000, but—

The barber said he didn't give a single shave on the trans-Atlantic trip, although he did give three haircuts.

The bartender served nine bottles of seltzer water, and that was the extent of the bar business.

MORE FREE STATE SOLDIERS REACH HUB

Vaudeville artists, shipworkers, skilled mechanics and laborers are included in the 463 passengers from Glasgow and Londonderry, who arrived in Boston aboard the Anchor Line steamship Cameronia. Upwards of fifty members of the Irish Irregular Army are reported to be among the newly arrived passengers.

6 KILLED AND 10 INJURED BY AUTOS

Six persons were killed and sixteen were injured in automobile accidents in Massachusetts and New England by Sunday motorists. Authorities believe the number of injured will be found to be greater when reports from outlying districts are received.

Mrs. Georgianna M. Love, treasurer of the South Newfane, Vt., Baptist Church, was struck while on her way home from church by an automobile driven by the Rev. Sidney D. Cahoon, pastor of the church. She died a few minutes later.

KILLED BY PASTOR.

Anita Florence, six years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Ayotte, of Lowell, died on her way to the hospital after being struck by an automobile driven by Louis O. Cook, No. 11 Champney street, Brighton.

Arnold Lahell, 13 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lahell, No. 115 Millbury street, Worcester, was instantly killed when an automobile driven by Mrs. Sigrid Bernard, No. 17 Stebbins street, Worcester, struck the bicycle on which the youth was riding as he tried to turn from the street car tracks out of the path of the automobile.

Barbara Schufelt, 6 years old, No. 259 Irving street, Framingham, was fatally injured by an automobile on Memorial Drive, Cambridge. Alexander Fox, No. 71 Wyoming avenue, Newton, driver of the automobile, was released on furnishing $1,000 bail. He is charged with manslaughter.

BOY FALLS OFF TRUCK.

Stealing a ride on the rear of a truck on Rebay street, Roxbury, resulted in the death of six-year-old Joseph Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curtis of No. 26 Barker park, Roxbury.

The child clambered to the truck on Rebay street, while the automobile was parked in front of a house. He was seated on the tailboard in a precarious position when the truck started. When the machine turned into East Cottage street, the child suddenly lost his balance and fell to the ground.

SETTLEMENT OF LYNN STRIKE COMING

Complete settlement of the strike of the shoe workers of Lynn was anticipated today when the Cushing Shoe Company and the Harney-Tracy-Crehan Company withdrew from the Manufacturers' Association and the Amalgamated Workers' Union lifted its ban on these two companies.

Other firms are expected to follow the lead of the two companies and to reach an agreement. The ban on the two companies was lifted at a meeting of the joint council and executives of the Amalgamated and the demand for a thirty per cent. wage increase is to be settled by arbitration.

P. J. Harney declared that his firm's retirement from the association was made imperative by the necessity for filling its orders. The association's agreement is with the United Shoe Workers.

A meeting of the United and Amalgamated which was planned for Sunday was not held and may be arranged today. Executives of the United meet today to discuss a conference.

HARDING TO ADDRESS A. P. MEMBERS IN N. Y.

Washington, April 23.—President Harding leaves Washington tonight for New York, where he will deliver an address tomorrow at the annual meeting of the membership of the Associated Press. The President, who will be accompanied by George B. Christian, Jr., his secretary; Brigadier-General Charles E. Sawyer, his personal physician, is expected to leave for Washington late Tuesday night. It was said Mrs. Harding also probably would accompany the President, although her plans were not definitely known.

VETS' BUREAU CHIEFS CONFER WITH HINES

Washington, April 23.—Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau had a conference with the fourteen district managers of the bureau throughout the country today in a three-day meeting to discuss all activities pertaining to disabled veteran aid. The conferences, Director Hines believes, will enable him to get at the heart of the difficulties and result in the elimination of waste and much of the red tape which the

80-Year-Old G. A. R. Veteran Spry as He Takes Bride

Bourne, April 23.—John J. Ryder, eighty years old, prominent Cape Cod Grand Army veteran, was married to his housekeeper, Mrs. Annette B. Wylie, sixty-eight years old, at the Methodist Church here. The bride, who comes from Somerville, has been married twice before, both husbands being dead.

Mr. Ryder made a spry and alert bridegroom. "We are very happy," he said, "and have the same ideals and aims. It is a remarkable case of congenial interest."

Mr. Ryder is commander of E. B. Nye Post, G. A. R., and the honeymoon has been postponed until after Memorial Day, so that he may lead his post in the Memorial Day parade.

Swing into the tradewinds
The War Department has charted a course of economical, sound jobbing, results of which can be seen daily on every hand. Main street has taken on a new complexion; huge department stores have reorganized their departments; industry-at-large has discovered a way out of the dilemma of prohibitive prices and delayed deliveries of raw materials, equipment and general supplies.
There are millions of dollars' worth more of this surplus available before the War Department abandons its jobbing activities. Nearly every piece of merchandise sold over the counter—every piece of equipment requisitioned daily by contractors, engineers and industrial plants can be duplicated from the surplus stocks to be sold in the next few months.
Glance at the panel and you will observe that some of these materials are available in early Auctions or Sealed Bid sales. Write to Major J. L. Frink, Chief, Sales Promotion Section, Room 2515, Munitions Bldg., Washington, D. C., advising him of the sales that you think will interest you, and your name will be placed on the mailing list for catalogs.

HUNDREDS ARE MADE VICTIMS

By JUANITA HANSEN.

I have just filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing my liabilities of $11,467, and no assets.

When I said I had no assets I meant that I had no material assets. No diamonds, no money, no large supply of clothes, no automobiles.

But it is not true that I have no assets.

I have more assets today than I ever had in my life before. I have health, happiness, a priceless faith in God, and a mission in life—an ambition far greater than the personal ambition which won for me what they call success. The kind of success I won wasn't really success.

Juanita Hansen

The law provides bankruptcy as a measure of relief for a person who is so harassed with debts that the rest of his life is threatened with financial perplexity. Bankruptcy wipes the slate clean. It gives one another chance. That's financial bankruptcy.

But I have filed another petition in bankruptcy—in spiritual bankruptcy. And instead of filing many liabilities and no assets, I am going to file many assets and no liabilities.

I have told you how I got into the tragic habit of the hell I lived while I was an addict; of conditions in the drug trade, which flourishes in EVERY CITY IN THE UNITED STATES; of my fall from opulence and success into the depths of poverty, despair and indulgence in the most fearful slavery to drugs.

HAS NO REGRETS.

I do not regret what I went through. I know now it was the means of my being able to go about with my message of hope to those who are enslaved as I was enslaved.

Some people, reading my articles, have sneered "publicity."

I want to say that the worst obstacle I have had to overcome—an obstacle even greater than the obstacles of my former craze for drugs—was the sense of false pride which argued to me that I ought not to tell my story.

The drug habit is a secret vice. Addicts do not flaunt their slavery. They are ashamed of it. I was bitterly ashamed of it. It required a terrific mental struggle for me to decide finally to pillory myself in the eyes and minds of the people, for that is what my series of articles has meant.

HERE WITH MESSAGE.

"There goes Juanita Hansen, the screen star," I used to hear with pride.

"There goes Juanita Hansen, the dope addict," I began to hear with pain after my stories began.

"Here comes Juanita Hansen with a message" I hear today with joy. It is my greatest recompense.

People have accused me of exaggerating conditions in the drug traffic. If they only knew! I have tried to tell all I know, but I haven't told one-tenth of the story. It is impossible for one person to tell the story of dope.

OTHERS CAN BE FREED.

When Wallace Reid died, unquestionably as a result of his drug habit, the whole world heard about it. But the world does not hear about the thousands of obscure victims who died and are dying as a result of the drug traffic. My heart breaks when I think of it. But it leaps when I think how I was freed, with the knowledge that others can be freed.

After my stay of several months in New York, with nothing but tall buildings and electric lights for scenery, I want the people of Boston to know how much I enjoyed my walk down Tremont street. While other women were busy shopping, my eyes were focussed only on the green grass of the Common. For the first time I carried my wrap. I know that Spring is here. For me it is a new year. My new year.

I have been asked whether drink had anything to do with the manner in which I became a victim of drugs. I will discuss that in my article tomorrow.

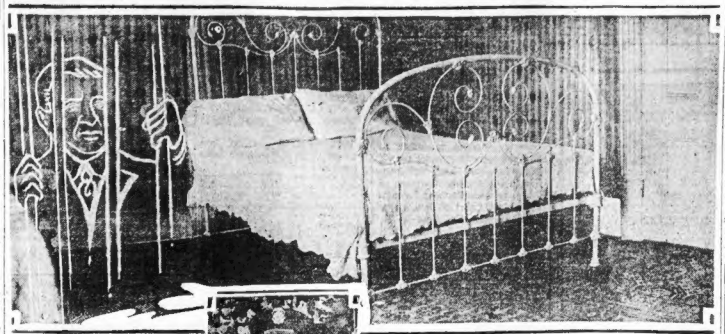
HOME IS READY FOR LIFER BARR



CAPTAIN WILLIAM A. PORTE

World War veteran and former special police officer at Nahant who offers haven for Barr if released.

ROOM AWAITING "LIFER"

Large bed with clean sheets and snow white pillow cases prepared for William Barr in Porte home at No. 132 West Newton street, South End, in contrast to dark prison cell where he has spent twenty-three years.

BARR TO LEARN HIS FATE ON WEDNESDAY

But two days more of suspense remain for James Barr, State prison "lifer," who is asking for parole after serving twenty-three years of his life sentence.

The day after tomorrow the Governor and his council are expected to decide whether or not Barr will be a free man or will have to die in jail. Barr was given the biggest disappointment of his life last Wednesday when the Governor's Council decided to postpone action on his request for parole for one week. This week Barr is confident the council will act.

Sixty thousand members of Scottish organizations of Massachusetts expect favorable action on Barr's appeal for freedom. These Scotchmen have fought for four years for Barr's freedom. Today they are confident that this will be the last "blue Monday" that James Barr will pass in State Prison.

COMFORTABLE HOME READY.

William A. Porte of No. 132 West Newton street, South End, is so confident of Barr's release that he has prepared Barr's room for his reception. Porte will take Barr into his comfortable home and care for him as though he were a member of the family. Barr will have a large, airy, light room in the Porte home, instead of a prison cot there is a large sheets and snow white pillow cases. There is a nice rug on the floor and the room will have a large size mirror before which he can comb and brush his hair that has grown white within prison walls.

The room overlooks a garden where the Portes have pretty flowers in the Summer. All is ready for Barr if the Governor's Council will say the word on Wednesday.

OFFERS WOMAN'S AID.

Mrs. Porte, a motherly soul, declares that she will be delighted to give Barr some of the home comforts that he has missed during these twenty-three years. "I am not afraid of that little old man," she said. "I know he will not harm a soul. He's all right. All he needs is freedom. I pray he gets it."

"I shall do anything in the world that I possibly can to help Jim Barr," said Captain Porte. "My home is open to him. I have a room prepared. He can come here and feel that he is among friends. It is a shame that his release has been delayed so long. He should get out. I feel that he will get out this week. We are ready for him if he comes."

Captain Porte is a member of the British Naval and Military Veterans' Association. He was at one time a special police officer at Nahant. He is a veteran of the World War, where he fought in the British army.

OVERCOME, EATING IN A RESTAURANT

John Kaine of No. 1262 Washington street, South End, is on the danger list at City Hospital. He was overcome while eating in a restaurant at No. 1146 Washington street. His illness, physicians say, is due to his age. He is seventy-seven.

GEN. BALDWIN, NOTED WAR HERO, IS DEAD

Denver, April 23.—Major-General Frank D. Baldwin, retired, said to be the only man in the United States twice awarded the congressional medal of honor, is dead at his home here. He was eighty-one years old.

For "distinguished bravery in the battles of Peach Tree Creek, Ga., July 20, 1864," he was awarded the congressional medal of honor.

Later General Baldwin distinguished himself in the campaign against Sitting Bull and in Indian campaigns in Texas. He was awarded the congressional medal a second time for "distinguished gallantry in action against the Indians in Texas, November 8, 1874."

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, April 21st, on shipments sold out, ranged from 4.50 cents to 14.75 cents per pound and averaged 13.71 cents per pound."—Advt.

MOVIES ISSUE IN BROOKLINE ELECTION

Whether or not moving picture theatres are to open in Brookline overshadows all other aspects of the municipal election to be held tomorrow. The election of a treasurer and tax collector, usually of interest, have been pushed into the background by the movie referendum.

While the result of the vote is not mandatory on the Selectmen, it is expected the desire of the majority will rule, and that the Selectmen will vote for or against movies according to the result of the votes.

Some business men favor movies in Brookline, and they are making every effort to bring out a large vote. Opponents to the bill claim that the movies would offer too great a distraction to the 6,000 children of the town and that dramatic films would cheapen their ideals of life.

The movie question has stirred Brookline in a manner that has not been equalled in many years.

STOKERS DESERT LINER CARMANIA

When the Cunard Liner Carmania sailed from Boston on her way to Queenstown and Liverpool, it was reported that she was sixteen stokers short in her boiler room. Five men who signed at New York climbed through a porthole while she was tied up to her dock at East Boston and were held up by a policeman. As the British consulate said the men could not be held against their will they were allowed to depart, all being American citizens.

MISCHA ELMAN IN VIOLIN RECITAL

By ZOE FABER

The lure of open country in Spring made noticeable inroads on the size of the audience that foregathered yesterday in Symphony Hall to hear Mischa Elman in the last, for this season, of his recitals that have been a feature of the music of the Winter.

Mr. Elman seemed in particularly good vein and played his program through with unusual zest for the music in hand.

The Mendelssohn Concerto was especially well done and the audience responded with the warmest of applause.

Of the smaller numbers, the Boccherini Minuet was charming and the Chopin Nocturne arranged by Sarasate played by Mr. Elman on muted strings created an effect of mist and music that was unusual. It is one of the most played of the Chopin Nocturnes, yet it has seldom sounded less hackneyed.

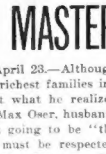
MAX OSER TO MAKE RICH BRIDE OF EIGHTEEN OBEY HIS ORDERS

SWISS ANNOUNCES HE IS TO BE MASTER IN HOME

London, April 23.—Although his bride is related by blood to two of the richest families in America while he himself has nothing except what he realized from the sale of his livery stable, Major Max Oser, husband of eighteen-year-old Mathilda McCormick, is going to be "the real head of his household, whose wishes must be respected," it was revealed today by friends with whom Oser once discussed the subject.

When the Osers return to Switzerland to establish their home, Oser will assume the mastership of domestic affairs. Before the marriage Mathilde was allowed to have her way and no check was placed upon her, but Oser confided to friends that once married he intended that Mathilde should be a wife who would respect her husband's desire after the custom of Europe.



Mrs. Mathilde Oser.

NEWLY-WEDS DISAPPEAR.

Mathilde McCormick Oser, on her mother's side, is the granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller; on her father's side is the granddaughter of Cyrus McCormick, multi-millionaire founder of the great International Harvester works.

Major and Mrs. Oser, who began their honeymoon in Scotland more than a week ago, have not yet disclosed their whereabouts. It is not even known if they are still on British soil. Their mail is being secretly forwarded through the London office of the International Harvester Company.

Friends expect Oser to insist upon a religious ceremony when the couple get back to Switzerland, in conformance with the practices of Oser's church.

REFUSED MATHILDE'S GIFTS.

It is understood the honeymoon has been most plain. The forty-five-year-old groom always has lived in economical fashion, and his young bride, despite her great wealth, is fond of plain and simple living and dress. Oser is understood to be a man of great independence. He has refused to use any of Mathilde's money and before the marriage refused to accept any gifts from her, including a motor car.

Oser sold his livery stable at Zurich, but received only a small amount. The balance is payable at intervals during the next five years.

BEAUTY WINS FIGHT TO ENTER U. S. AND WED

New York, April 23.—When Miss Irma Lullen, a rosy-cheeked beauty from Latvia arrived here on the steamer Berengaria she was denied admittance to the United States by the boarding officer of the Immigration service on the ground that the Latvian quota had been exhausted. She simply smiled at the officer of the law and said:

"You may send me to Ellis Island, but you'll never shut me out of the country, because I have come here to marry Robert Silleneck, and there's a trite saying, familiar throughout Christendom, that 'love will find a way.'"

It just happened, too, that Charles Carol, of the New York Bible Society, who is chairman of the Social Welfare Workers on Ellis Island, is a close personal friend of Robert Silleneck. Both men are from Latvia, and they arranged for a long distance telephone consultation with the head expert in Washington. Word came back that the Latvian quota is not at all exhausted, but has a balance of 198.

Miss Lullen's father is a wealthy real estate man in Libau. She and Robert Sieneck were childhood sweethearts. He is a student in mechanical and electrical engineering here.

Eleonora Sears Joins Spring Exodus Abroad, Says Betty Alden

Miss Eleonora Sears of Beacon street has joined the Spring exodus abroad, planning to return home sometime around mid-Summer.

By BETTY ALDEN

NOT until the mid-Summer will Boston see anything of Miss "Eleo" Sears, who's as much wedded to her sports as ever. At present the famous horsewoman is sojourning in France, planning to arrive in England early in June for the big tennis matches at Wimbledon. She is not expected to return to these shores until about the middle or latter part of July, when, I believe, she will spend the remainder of the season at the North Shore.

Speaking of the shore—the small string of thoroughbreds which Miss Sears still owns will surely bemoan the absence of their mistress. For every weekend, regardless of the weather, she went down during the Winter from the Beacon street home to the Shore, where the horses are kept in the stables of the Caswell place at Beverly Farms. Despite the treacherous ice which covered the roads everywhere then, Miss Sears was regularly seen riding the many trails along the shore.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL HAMLEN of Gloucester street have been spending a few days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton. At the same hotel from Boston are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett.

"Picturesque Gardens" is the subject for a talk which Harold Hill Blossom will give tomorrow morning at the Copley-Plaza. The lecture is to benefit the Robert Gould Shaw printing class and the Baldwinsville Hospital cottages for children.

Mrs. Oliver Ames heads the list of sponsors, which abounds with such well-known names as those of Mesdames Robert F. Clark, Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, I. Tucker Burr, Freeman Allen and Tom Gannett.

Tickets may be had from Mrs. Frederick T. Lord of No. 305 Beacon street or at Herrick's. Mr. Blossom has an unusually fine collection of photographs which the audience will have an opportunity of seeing at tomorrow's lecture.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM VAN V. WARREN, following their wedding journey to the South, have been spending a few days in New York before coming to Boston.

Mrs. Warren was formerly Miss Isabel Lawrence Mauran of St. Louis, where her marriage to the Harvard '14 man was solemnized on January 27, also the wedding day of the former Rose Fesenden and Edward Livingston Bigelow, who have only just returned from their wedding journey to California. Other Bostonians stopping at the Hotel Lorraine are Mr. and Mrs. William Sumner Crosby.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

THERE'S many a man these days who would be willing to swap jobs with Alan Crosland. Many of the same beauties flickering across the silver sheet in "Enemies of Women" are again taking orders from Crosland, who is directing "Under the Red Robe" for Cosmopolitan. In the screen version of Stanley Weyman's famous story, featuring Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens, more than 100 famous Broadway beauties will appear. Among them are more than a score of Ziegfeld "Follies" and "Greenwich Village Follies" girls, including Naomi Johnson, Vivian Vernon, Arline Booth, Marcelle Miller, Marion Morehead, Lulu Gorey and Elsa Bartlett.

FAMILY REUNION.

A REUNION of two prominent theatrical families for the first time in years, took place at the United Studios when Maurice Tourneur engaged Tully Marshall for "The Brass Bottle" and ushered him into an office where sat Richard Walton Tully, prominent theatrical and motion picture producer. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Tully are cousins. The latter had just arrived from New York to produce "Trilby." He had hardly sat down at his desk when his cousin, whom he had not seen in years, greeted him. Ever since Tully had taught Richard Walton the elements of the dramatic art, the two had been traveling in different parts of the world.

ANTI-DOPE CRUSADE.

ROBERT McKIM and Harry Northrup have been added to the cast of Mrs. Wallace Reid's anti-narcotic film, "Human Wreckage." McKim is playing a heavy of a "dope" doctor in the Reid film, and doubling on the Fox lot as a drunken lawyer in a revival of "The Spoilers." When he gets off the "dope" and sobered up from his drunk, he expects to start cycling in the picture version of "Captain Applejack," soon to be filmed, in which he is cast as a Russian spy. Northrup is playing the role of one of the "higher-ups" in the dope peddler's ring in "Human Wreckage."

FISH FINS FOR HATS LATEST PARIS FAD

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

assembling about at Long champs, the average social gathering for this Summer is destined to resemble a cross between a Balinese fete and a South Sea Island tea party.

Two definite novelties bloomed forth at the races. The first was a lunch stolen from the kitchen, many of the women wearing aprons. The other was the very latest thing in the use of fish fins for hat decorations.

In the Paddock there were thousands of Americans backing their favorites. Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Parsons, Leyland Hayward, David Van Buren and Mrs. John Black formed an animated group, the centre of which was Elsie Janis, who is performing locally.

The aprons were not white, but were violently embroidered red, green, blue and yellow caballistic designs imitating the ceremonial garb of the Balkan peasantry, from whom the inspiration came.

The incredible use of fish fins as an adjunct to fashions, was made possible by the importation of a chance of several marvelous varieties of tropical fish, including the "scarus," which has a nose like a dog, but which boasts a beautifully colored tail. Another fish is the "sealare," with rainbow fins. Both of these are from Brazil. The "gauze winged" tiger fish from the China Sea is a favorite by reason of its brilliant blue veil-like fin, which after death sets rigidly without losing its color.

BODIES OF WAR DEAD TAKEN TO BELGIUM

Dover, England, April 23.—A great concourse of people, including Baron Moncheur, the Belgian Ambassador, today witnessed the ceremony of the removal of the bodies of seventy-nine Belgian soldiers who died in England during the war. The bodies were embarked aboard the British cruiser Calliope, which proceeded to Zeebrugge, accompanied by four destroyers.

Noted Painter Never Saw "a Really Pretty Woman"

By Universal Service.

Paris, April 23.—Sir William Orpen, noted portrait painter, said today:

"In my twenty-five years of painting I have never seen a perfect model nor a really pretty woman."

Sir William says women use automobiles so much that their legs become thin and their feet and arms wanly artificial. He added:

"They substitute with paint for the glow of health, so how can painters be expected to portray their beauty when it is artificial?"

PROBE VOODOOISM IN BABY MURDERS

Crisfield, Md., April 23.—The belief that the two negro children, whose bodies with the heads completely severed, were found in a weighted sack in a pond last Thursday, were victims of voodooism was apparently gaining ground today.

According to a number of citizens here voodoo ceremonials have been held by negroes, who hold in awe the "sorcerer" who can work his audience up to a frenzy. These ceremonials, it is claimed, sometimes involve the sacrifice of negro infants.

Judge Fred N. Holland said that he intended to sift reports of voodoo meetings to the bottom.

Because of the possibility that voodoo meetings were some distance from Crisfield and the bodies carried in authorities say the extension of the investigation to all parts of the county is probable.

CAT HAS A ROOM, AND EVERYONE IS HAPPY

New York, April 23.—Representatives of radio broadcasting organizations met Arthur Bachelor, Federal radio inspector in the Second District, today to adopt time and wave length schedules for stations in the most congested area in the United States.

At the conference were representatives of municipalities, police departments, churches, steamship lines, newspapers, wireless and telegraph agencies, theatres, radio phone manufacturers and commercial broadcasters.

The schedule adopted will conform as nearly as possible, said Mr. Batcheller, to the priority and wave length assignments suggested by Secretary Hoover.

Be Sure Your Washing Machine Is Copper

Washes far cleaner than all the back-breaking toil of all the Mondays from Mother Eve to the Gibson Girl—

That's what the electric washing machine does.

But be sure the washer you buy is built of Copper. Other metals rust and ruin clothes. Copper cannot rust.

TWO DEPARTMENTS IN U. S. RUBBER PROBE

AMERICANS TO PRODUCE THEIR OWN

Investigation Shows World Will Require 800,000 Tons in 1940

By International News Service.

Washington, April 23.—Plans were completed today by the Department of Agriculture and Department of Commerce for their joint investigation of the rubber industry, an inquiry authorized by Congress to determine whether the United States can produce the rubber that it needs independently of the rest of the world.

The investigation will get under way within a few weeks in California, the Philippines and Latin-America.

INVESTIGATE PLANTS.

The Department of Agriculture will study the growing of rubber plants on American soil, in two laboratories, on at San Diego, Cal., and the other in the South Arizona district. The Department of Commerce is holding off its probe into economic phases of rubber production. The Department will study prospects for American rubber plantations in the Philippines and Latin-America.

In connection with its laboratory work the Department of Agriculture will examine most of the known rubber-producing plants, including the Chinese and another known as guayule, already grown on American soil.

AMERICAN RESOURCES.

While the quality of rubber produced from the latter is not as high as Para, rubber experts thought through grafting with tropical plants the American varieties might be converted into satisfactory commercial rubber producers. Rubber taken from guayule has been used as a mixture with para when prices were unusually high.

The world rubber production of 1923 is estimated at more than 400,000 tons. The United States will require approximately 265,000 tons, and all other countries about 120,000 tons. At the present rate about 800,000 tons of rubber will be required annually by 1940. Unless a wide development of rubber production is brought about there will be a disastrous shortage in a few years, officials declare.

BRIDE ON THURSDAY OF DUKE OF YORK

LADY ELIZABETH BOWES-LYON

London, April 23.—Reserved seats to watch the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon as they go back to Buckingham Palace from the altar of Westminster Abbey next Thursday, are about as expensive as places at a world's champion boxing match.

Bleachers to accommodate 1,500 spectators have been put up across the street from the Abbey, and each sitting rents for five guineas. A guinea, these days, is the equivalent of about $5.

Occupants of buildings along the route the bridal pair will travel are already leasing window space for the wedding day.

LOST BOY FOUND BY DOG MAY DIE OF EXPOSURE

Sanford, Me., April 23.—Thinly clad and almost unconscious from the cold, his feet dangling in the icy water, Lawrence Warts, four years old, was found seated on the banks of the Old Falls dam by his brother Walter, aged thirteen, and his dog Chucks.

Little Lawrence became lost three days ago in the dense woods surrounding this town. He was carried in relays by members of the searching party to his father's home, four miles distant.

FEAR BOY MAY DIE.

First aid administered by the father, Hiram Warts, and others failed to revive the lad. He was taken as rapidly as possible to the Ross Hospital, eveien miles distant. Physicians fear he may die.

Lawrence and his brother, Charles, one year his senior, wandered from home Friday noon. The Warts family is a numerous one. There are in all thirteen children. The two absentees were not missed until the father returned from work at the Goodall Mills late Friday evening.

DOG FINDS CHILD.

Saturday afternoon Sheriff Haven Roberts of York county and the 309th Company of the Coast Artillery started to beat the woods in search of the boys. Mill workers, boy scouts and others joined the searching party, which grew to 500 persons.

He could tell nothing of his brother's whereabouts.

Walter Warts, Jr., thirteen years old, disregarded the main searching party, and accompanied by his mongrel dog, Chucks, started on a lone hunt for his brother. Four miles distant from his home, Chucks let out a yelp, and dashed through the brush. Charles following as close as he could. When he caught up to the dog, he saw him clasped in Lawrence's arms, licking the child's face and wig-wagging a message of happiness with his tail.

Cambridge Wars on Unlicensed and Unmuzzled Dogs

The war being waged upon unlicensed dogs in Cambridge has caused a flood of applications for licenses at the city clerk's office.

Until Dog Catcher Frank Curtin gathered in many unlicensed and unmuzzled animals, citizens in general paid little attention to placards posted about the city warning them to have their pets licensed and muzzled.

MITE CLUB HOLDS WHIST FOR CHARITY

A whist party will be held in St. Hugh's Guild Hall, Dorchester, tomorrow night in aid of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. The event is under the auspices of the Mite Club. The members of the club are: Mary M. Cronin, president; Mary F. Porter, treasurer; Esther J. Glynn, secretary; Kathryn E. Colgan, Margaret Carney, Gertrude Glynn, Florence Mahon, Emily Lockwood, Maisie McDonough, Lillian McDonough, Mary V. Wall.

FOIL PLOT TO BOMB CHURCH IN DUBLIN

Dublin, April 23.—Hundreds of worshippers in the Carmelite Church of Dublin narrowly escaped death when a land mine weighing more than 200 pounds was placed next door by armed men.

The mine failed to explode as spectators rushed up and extinguished the fuses after they had been lighted by two young men who drove up in fashionable Grafton street, covering the spectators with their revolvers while they planted the mine.

The heroism of the men in the crowd, who risked their lives to put out the fuse, saved many lives.

The body of a man named Hogan was discovered in a field riddled with bullets. He was a government employe and was the victim of a gang known as the "Flying Fifty."

The Free State forces made a successful sweep of three counties in the last two days, rounding up gangs of irregulars.

Many munition dumps were discovered in the series of raids staged by government troops through the counties of Donegal, Limerick and Kerry. The raids netted more than fifty prisoners and were conducted without any casualties to the Free Staters.

BOSTON AMERICAN BICYCLE RUN TO BE HELD MAY 6

COSTLY PRIZES DONATED FOR ANNUAL FREE OUTING

EVERYTHING FREE.

Everything connected with the carnival will be free. There will be no fees of any kind. Any person in New England may enter without cost.

The carnival will consist of a big bicycle parade from Copley Square, Boston, to Franklin Field, Dorchester, followed by bicycle, tricycle and toy automobile contests at the Field. The event will be for young and old. No one will be too young or too old to take part, provided he or she can pedal a machine.

RACING BARRED.

The sole object of the carnival is to give the readers of the Boston American and their many friends a pleasant outing. It is expected that thousands of cyclists will participate in the carnival on account of the good time they will have and also because of the opportunity to win one of the many fine prizes that are offered.

We don't care what kind of a bicycle you ride or how old it is. If you can pedal your machine slowly for six miles—the distance from Copley square to Franklin Field—you are entitled to become an entrant. There will be no racing of any kind during the parade or afterward at Franklin Field. Cyclists who desire to race must go elsewhere.

BIGGEST EVENT EVER.

Last Spring 2,500 bicyclists took part in the American's carnival, thus surprising persons who thought the "bike" a has-been. A crowd, estimated by park department officials at 25,000, witnessed the riding events at Franklin Field at the conclusion of the parade.

Commissioner James B. Shea, head of Boston's park and recreation department, is making preparations for an even larger assembly this season. He is planning to care for 35,000 spectators at the Boston American's carnival. The indications are that it will be the biggest event of its kind ever staged in this country.

CHILDREN WILL BE SAFE.

Parents need have no fear for their young children. We want every kiddie in Greater Boston who has a tricycle, toy automobile or bicycle to take part in this carnival. During the parade fast riding will be strictly forbidden. The Boston American's bicycle editor and several Boston motorcycle policemen will ride at the head of the procession to see that this order is enforced. Any riders who attempt to "scorch" will be politely but firmly invited by the policemen to leave the parade.

Not only are the little ones especially invited to take part in the carnival, but the bicycle editor also wants their grand-dads present on their old-time "highboys," "bone-shakers" and other models of other days. We would like to see every type of bicycle ever manufactured, in the procession. Go into the attic, old-timers, and get those antique steeds in condition. They always make a hit.

FILL OUT ENTRY BLANK.

All riders who wish to take part in the American's carnival should fill out the entry blank appearing on this page and forward it to "Bicycle Carnival Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston (8), Mass." To every person who enters a souvenir will be presented free and also an attractive certificate of admission. Don't wait. Enter NOW.

Boston American Bicycle Carnival Entry Coupon

I desire to enter the fourth annual bicycle carnival of the Boston American on Sunday afternoon, May 6. I understand that this entitles me to ride in the bicycle parade from Copley Square to Franklin Field and to take part in the contests at Franklin Field without cost, also to receive a souvenir and certificate free.

DRUNKEN AUTOISTS BLAMED FOR FIRE

East Jaffrey, N. H., April 23.—Drunken autoists whose machine broke down near the mill, are believed to have started a fire which destroyed the lumber yard of Bean & Simonds with a loss of more than $100,000.

The fire was still burning today, but is under control. Strenuous work of several hours saved the main mill, but a dwelling house nearby was destroyed. Match block stock was in the burned yard.

MASS MEETING HELD FOR IRISH MARTYRS

More than 600 persons attended the mass meeting held on Boston Common by the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic. Chester A. Arthur, grandson of former President Arthur, declared that the Irish Free State treaty was signed by Irish representatives only because England threatened to war upon Ireland if they didn't. The meeting was intended as a memorial to the Irish martyrs.

DARE DEATH ON ICE FOR NOMINATIONS

St. John's, N. F., April 23.—Government and opposing candidates for five electoral districts of Newfoundland left the steamboat Kyle, on which they have been icebound seventeen days, and walked to shore over dangerous ice floes, to file nomination papers for the election on May 3.

GIRL SENTENCES THIEVES TO DEATH

Moscow, April 23.—A plain featured, plainly dressed, brown-eyed girl with bobbed hair, scarcely in her twenties, presided over Moscow District Court.

Eight men were led before her by armed Soviet police. They marched with fearless tread. A complaint charging robbery with violence was read by a court attache. The prisoners pleaded guilty.

The woman judge reviewed the evidence; then sentenced seven to death. The eighth, a youth under eighteen, was given ten years.

RULE ON DE VALERA'S RIGHT TO ENTER U. S.

Washington, April 23.—Eamon De Valera could not lawfully be admitted to the United States without a passport from a recognized government, unless he chose to declare he came to seek asylum. Then the Department of Labor would decide whether he was in danger of death or bodily harm. This is the answer of government officials to a request for the information.

LIPS LIKE RED FLAG, HE SAYS

Flapper Vamp Illustrates Menace of Paint and Powder, Pastor Warns

Sunday sermons in Boston reveal that preaching the gospel in the effete East has dangers and temptations no less perilous and seductive than those encountered by the missionaries to the barbarous lands

Threats of a coat of tar and feathers were related by the Rev. Martin D. Kneeland in Park Street

Church as a portion of his lot in opposing an "open" Sunday.

Deliberate vamping of the reverend gentleman by a sixteen-year-old flapper, painted and powdered like the "bedizened things" of Holy Scripture, was the experience of Dr. J. C. Massee, told in Tremont Temple.

Rev. Mr. Kneeland, who is general secretary of the Sabbath Protective League, disclosed that his mission is no sinecure in view of the greed of those who would profit financially by the removal of the restrictions on amusements and sports on the Sabbath Day.

"Already in this country," the preacher pointed out, "automobiling is so common that the Lord's Day is becoming a day of death. Movie shows are open too wide on Sunday and Boston would be better off without them on that day.

VAMPED IN PULLMAN.

Dr. Massee's experience was reminiscent of that of the missionaries to the South Sea Islands to some of the congregation that filled his church to overflowing.

It happened in a Pullman car recently, according to the reverend doctor.

"As I boarded the car, I saw a young girl, no older than sixteen, in the seat ahead of me," he stated, in his sermon, which contended that paint and powder and want of virtue are a menace to the modern home.

"As I've said, I'm no flirt. Yet that little sixteen-year-old flapper undertook to flirt with me. I felt like taking her home to her mother and asking the old lady to stand by while the girl washed off her face."

PASTOR BARS KNICKER GIRLS AT SERVICES

Westfield, April 23.—"Knickers" have their place, but that place is not the church or the business district, according to Rev. George M. Fitzgerald, rector of St. Mary's Church here.

He told young women who attended church service in this garb that while knickers might be comfortable and all right for outings in unfrequented parts of the city they were worn in centres of population only for the purpose of attracting attention.

SONGBIRD AND HER PET CAUSE A FLUTTER

FLORENCE MacBETH AND LIZETTE

When Miss MacBeth wired on to reserve two rooms, one for her cat, visions of bad luck loomed up. Hotel rules failed to tell what to do. Finally it was agreed to give Lizette a room for herself, but Miss MacBeths maid will also occupy it.

MORE PAPPAS EVIDENCE IS FOUND

Attorney John F. Feeney, known throughout New England as a leading criminal lawyer, has become chief of counsel for Paul Pappas, convicted slayer of Alice Arsenault, and under sentence to die May 1.

In taking charge of the Pappas defence Mr. Feeney said his first move would be to make a motion for a new trial, to be based on new evidence.

He has refused to make a specific statement relative to the nature of this evidence, although he has intimated he will prove to the court that Mrs. Arsenault was alive a month after she is supposed to have been murdered.

"I am confident the court will grant my motion for a new trial when I have presented the evidence on which I will base my motion," Mr. Feeney said. "This evidence has been brought to my attention. It was not until I had thoroughly gone over the evidence and considered the case from every angle that I consented to take the case."

Attempts to secure a new trial thus far have been futile.

Immediately after Attorney Feeney was retained for the Pappas defence, a committee from the Crete Society, headed by the Rev. M. Alexopoulos and Charles Ernest, an Attorneys Schenck and Kenney conferred with Attorney Feeney.

Evidence on which the petition for a new trial will be made was brought out at this time.

MAINE EXILE APPEALS FOR AID

Portland, Me., April 23.—James Welch Lewis, who was wrongfully convicted of murder in this State nearly thirty years ago, and who served fourteen months of a life sentence before the real murderer was [illegible] today appealed to the people of Portland and vicinity for aid.

Nothing has been heard of him since his release in 1901, and his present appeal for help comes from the pampas of Bolivia, where he hopes to end his days in peace.

Alone, friendless and without funds, he now wishes to establish himself on a little farm in Bolivia, remote from anyone who ever knew him or knew of him.

Lewis was a sailor in his youth. Tiring of the sea he went to work as a farm hand on the Mosher farm in Dedham. One night Mosher was found dead in his barn, killed with an axe. Lewis was accused and Edward Graffam, another farm hand, was the chief witness against him. On Graffam's evidence he was convicted. Later, Clifford Mosher, a son of the old farmer, was murdered and his crime was placed upon Graffam, who is now serving a life sentence as a penalty for it. In Graffam's trial it came out that his evidence against Lewis was perjured and Lewis was pardoned.

MAN IS CRUSHED BETWEEN ENGINES

Samuel Cooperman, thirty-one years old, of No. 297 Cambridge street, was probably fatally injured when he was crushed between two engines at the Southhampton street roundhouse of the New Haven Railroad. He was removed to the City Hospital suffering from a fractured hip and internal injuries. His name is on the danger list. Cooperman is employed as a mechanic at the roundhouse. He is married.

SEPARATE ROOM FOR HER CAT

Singer's Pet Upsets the Hotel Management for a Time, but Everything Is Fixed Up

"Lizette" is happy. So is Miss Florence MacBeth, soprano soloist, who is scheduled to sing at the Boston Symphony concert tonight. So is L. C. Prior, manager of the Hotel Brunswick.

For "Lizette" is occupying a special room of her own, in the suite engaged by her mistress and a special maid has been delegated by Manager Prior to attend to the needs of the dainty, fluffy black cat that arrived today from Kentucky.

"Lizette," it must be explained, is the particular pride of Miss MacBeth. "She is French, you know," stated the mistress to the Boston American today.

"Born in France, then?" was the query.

"Oh, no, she was born in Minneapolis but she looks Frenchy, so I call her Lizette," was the explanation.

For a time the management of the hotel was at a loss as to what to do when a telegram from the songster requested reservations "for two rooms, "one for myself and one for my cat."

Perusal of the rules of the house failed to shed any light on the disposition of black cats. Bad luck and everything else looked the manager in the eye. But he wasn't going to allow superstition to stand in his way.

And so Lizette was installed in the same suite with her mistress and the maid put on duty in the kitty's room.

"They were very kind to my Lizette," proclaimed Miss MacBeth today. "The maid is in constant attendance and everything possible is being done for her comfort.

SCORES FLEE $50,000 SWAMPSCOTT FIRE

Families in nearby tenements were ordered to leave their homes by the police when a $50,000 fire in the plant of the Briggs Coal Company on Columbia road, Swampscott, threatened the dwellings.

Several horses were saved when the fire, after sweeping through a big coal shed, set fire to the barn and destroyed it. A deluge of water played upon a huge oil tank of the Standard Oil Company nearby prevented it from exploding.

The fire is believed to have originated in a hay car where a gang of young men are said to have spent the day. Large amounts of coal, hay, grain and wood were destroyed.

TWO CHILDREN BITTEN BY DOGS

Two children bitten by dogs were treated at the City Hospital, where the wounds were cauterised to prevent rabies. Helen McVarish, ten years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McVarish of No. 27 Eolita terrace, Brighton, was bitten on the leg and ankle. Robert Silverman, twelve years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mendel Silverman of No. 65 Emerald street, South End, was bitten on the right leg by a dog who attacked him near his home. The dog escaped.

MAN TAKES RAT POISON AND DIES

After he had taken a large quantity of rat poison at his home by mistake, Lawrence Rago, fifty-five years old, of No. 156 Prince street, North End, died at the City Hospital. Rago was married and had several children. The poison which caused his death was found to be a form of phosphorus used as a rat poison. Friends say the poison was taken unintentionally.

BRIBERY IS CHARGED IN R. I. CITY

Attorney-General Accuses Woonsocket Hotel Men of Offering Cash for Protection

Woonsocket, April 23.—Attorney-General Herbert L. Carpenter, who recently served notice on Chief of Police Coe of this city that unless he proceeded to enforce the prohibition amendment he would act to clean up the city, in an address here Sunday condemned conditions prevailing at the present time.

"The law is not being enforced in Woonsocket in any particular," he said. "There are more crooks in Woonsocket than in all the rest of the State.

"They have been driven out of North Providence and they have camped here. There are more drunks in Woonsocket than there have been in years.

"We want public sentiment to compel the police department to enforce the law in Woonsocket in every dive and near-beer saloon.

"Hotelkeepers have come to me during the past week and offered me sums of money that would choke you, to let them go along as they have been going."

NAVY YARD WORKERS PROTEST PAY CUT

Charlestown Navy Yard civilian workers, following the lead of those at Portsmouth, N. H., and Newport, R. I., have protested the wage reductions which become effective on May 1 next to Secretary of the Navy Denby.

President William A. McDonald of the local Metal Trades Council, representing 800 employes, forwarded a letter, to the secretary in which it is contended that the reductions which were approved by the then Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt are based upon conditions of more than six months ago and that private firms propose to raise wages on May 1.

The reductions were recommended by the Navy Department Wage Board. Blacksmiths are reduced from 78 to 71 cents an hour, machinists from 75 to 73 cents, moulders from 78 to 73 cents.

CARDINAL ON SEA EN ROUTE TO LIVERPOOL

Cardinal O'Connell is today en route to Liverpool on the steamship Carmania enjoying the complete mental and physical relaxation which, he declared to those gathered to see him off, he can find only in an ocean voyage.

Sailing with him were Monsignor Heberlin, his private secretary, and Monsignor Splain, rector of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury. His three nieces—the Misses Alice, Anna and Josephine O'Connell of Brookline—are also members of the Cardinal's party.

They are the daughters of Edward J. O'Connell, brother of the Cardinal and superintendent of Holy Cross Cemetery.

Essex Postoffice Fire

A fire in a heap of rubbish in the boiler room below the Essex street postoffice, started the sprinkler system in the building working and sounded an automatic alarm. Smoke from the basement entered the postoffice, but the clerks continued their duties. The fire caused slight damage to the basement.

Director regards as responsible for the criticism.

A Scarlet Poppy Clew

"GENTLEMAN to see you, Mr. Chase. He won't give his name."

The District Attorney glanced up at the clerk who guarded the doorway to his private office. "Won't give his name?"

"Not to me. He says he'll give it to you if you'll see him."

"What does he look like?"

"All right, far's I can see. Tall, square-jawed man with grayish hair. Looks like he might be an army officer in civilian clothes. Face is familiar, too, but I can't quite place him. I think he's in the movies, some way."

"Nothing suspicious about him—eyes—actions—what he says—anything?"

"Nothing that I noticed. Says his business is urgent but private."

"I'll see him. Wait a couple of minutes and then send him in."

When the clerk had gone out the District Attorney carefully turned certain papers face downward on his desk, slipped others underneath the blotter, and closed a drawer that was standing open. Then he turned his swivel chair so that the clear sunshine of a perfect Los Angeles afternoon would be at his back and his face would be in the shadow from the window.

After that he slightly opened another drawer close to his elbow and reassured himself that the automatic pistol lying there was ready to hand.

An Official Precaution

It was not that Scott Chase was afraid. On the contrary, his conception of his duties as public prosecutor had been marked by exceptional fearlessness. He had made many enemies, as do all men who bring evildoers to justice, but he wasted no time on their possible schemes for "getting even." His precautions in the present instance were due almost wholly to a feeling of responsibility. There were certain cases on the calendar that he alone could handle. No jailbird with a mania for vengeance would stop the trying of those cases if he could help it.

The anonymous visitor had scarce taken a step across the threshold before Chase had decided that no further precautions would be necessary. To the details of description already given him by the clerk he added on his own account the unwavering gray eyes, the ruddy, out of door skin, and the finely modeled, neatly barbered head. "A thoroughbred" was his instant mental estimate of the man and he so far forgot his customary reserve as to rise and clasp the Begin them both today and read them every day in the Boston American.

5 CHELSEA FIRES OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

The work of incendiaries is suspected by Fire Chief David M. Hudson of the Chelsea Fire Department in five successive fires which caused a total damage of not less than $75,000. With one exception, the fires were extinguished before the buildings were destroyed.

Location of the fires: Royal Electric Bulb Company, 193 West Third street, destroyed; Acme Company plant, rag-bag district, Third street; Leiter & Troess Building, 180 Third street; Philip Reisman Building, 186-8 Third street; Hyman Rubin Building, 192 Third street.

AUTOPSY ON BODY OF "POISON" VICTIM

An autopsy will be held to determine the cause of the death of Ella Quinn, who died at the City Hospital after remaining unconscious for five days. She was removed to the hospital several days ago from the Quincy House, after she was thought to have been suffering from morphine poisoning.

Police were unable to locate relatives of the dead woman. Her possessions, which include several bankbooks, are being held by the hotel authorities until relatives appear to claim them.

MORE THAN 2,000 COLLEGE ATHLETES IN PENN CARNIVAL

WORLD'S RECORDS MAY GO BY THE BOARD

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The Ancient and Honorable Order of the Spiked Shoes stages its first get-together of the outdoor season of 1923 this week.

That great track and field perennial, the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, and college and school athletes to the number of 2,000 or 3,000 will be on hand to show their skill or ability in the various tests.

Each year the Franklin Field meeting marks the opening of the outdoor track season and gives to America's vast athletic following the first indication of what is to be the quality of this track and field entertainment for the Spring and Summer.

The Penn Carnival is unique in the respect that it attracts competitors from a much wider field than does any other college meet of the year. Pacific Coast, Middle West, South and East are represented in the States' performers, while Canada, possibly Cuba, and, of a certainty, England will furnish foreign foes ambitious to best the athletes of our schools and colleges.

Interest in the carnival is more keen than ever before for, with the Paris Olympiade but one year away, the competing athletes have an added incentive while the thousands of athletic followers who annually populate the Franklin Field Stadium are anxious to witness the preliminary clashes between men who are apt to meetin the coming Olympic games.

Then, too, the Pennsy meet has been one that has furnished many American, collegiate and world's track records, and in the long list of those who are to perform in the relays or the special events are several who have so closely approached record performances that good weather and field conditions at Philadelphia would practically assure new world's or American marks.

Almost every field event in which competition will be conducted reveals among its list of entries one or more men who seem capable of bettering the existing world's marks.

In the hammer throw there is Fred Tootell, captain of the Bowdoin team, who, according to his sponsor, Coach Johnnie Magee, already has heaved the wire-handled ball within three or four feet of the world's record.

In the 16-pound shotput there is Ralph Hills of Princeton, and possibly Glenn Hartranft of Leland Stanford, each of whom has forced the shot within inches of the record set by Ralph Rose.

In the high jump there is LeRoy Brown, captain of the Dartmouth track team and joint holder of the world's indoor high jump record, and possibly Jack Osborne and two or three others of established class, who may move the record in that event a notch higher.

In the pole vault there are a half dozen entrants who have been doing 12 feet 6 inches or better indoors, and who seem to possess ability that will send them a foot higher outdoors and thus accomplish still another new mark.

And so it all through the field numbers of the special events on the Penny Carnival program.

There are record possibilities in two of the special track events also, for in the 440-yard hurdles, Gus Desch of the present record holder from Notre Dame is listed as a starter, while in the century dash, Al LeConey of Lafayette has flashed within one-tenth of a second of the record, and may equal or smash the mark on Saturday.

As for the college relay numbers, seldom have they shown greater promise. The two-mile international intercollegiate relay championship in which the Oxford-Cambridge team rules the favorite, there will be capable opposition from several Yankee institutions, and the winner may be forced to a record in breezing home to victory.

And there are worlds of class in the one-mile and sprint relays and in the distance medley and sprint medley contests for college teams.

New England, as has usually been the case, will be well represented at the carnival, for teams or individual performers will be sent to Philadelphia from Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Boston College, Tech, Williams, Amherst, Bowdoin, Colby, Maine, Bates, Wesleyan, Trinity, Vermont, New Hampshire, Exeter, Andover, Huntington School, Moses Brown School and several of the larger New England high schools. And indications are that New England this year, as in sort years, will come away with a bit more than its allotted share of the glory.

RED SOX TACKLE MACKS BEFORE HOME-COMING

Philadelphia, April 23.—All set to shake the jinx that has followed them for four straight games, the Boston Red Sox opened here today against Connie Mack's hustling Athletics.

Luck was certainly against the Sox in the series just ended against the Yankees. The stage was all set Friday for the Beantowners' first victory, when a smashing double by Babe Ruth paved the way for a 4 to 3 victory for the Yanks.

Manager Frank Chance believes the right-field fence at Shibe Park will be a target for Clouting George Burns and "Moose" Harris. "Dick" Reichle, a rookie, covering the right garden, has come along fast and probably will play regularly.

"Shano" Collins, the old warhorse, has shown up well thus far in centrefield. Once started, "Shano" is pretty hard to stop. "Big Bill" Piercy has yet to round into mid-season form. Bill pitched a grand game Friday, as the box score indicates, but that smash by the Bambino of Swat ruined his chances.

Only four more days, Boneheads, to the opening of the Red Sox season.

And only 24 tickets left to be awarded to winners. Tickets are being mailed today to the lucky ones. If you haven't won a ticket to either the Braves or Red Sox opening, you still have an eleventh hour chance to get a pass.

Today's winners:

H. W. MANGLES, JR., No. 129 Milk street, Boston.

"A friend of mine who is a shipping clerk and very dense used to have a lot of trouble with his watch. He would bump against packing cases and break the crystal. A friend of his suggested that he get one of those watch covers made of celluloid—non-breasnals. He took the up and came over to me the other day, boasting about it. In order to prove that the newcrystal was unbreakable, he dropped his watch to the ground. The crystal didn't break, but everything else in the watch did."

SIDNEY L. MORRISON, No. 175 Townsend street, Roxbury.

"Two weeks ago I was visiting a friend of mine who had a daughter of about twelve years. The little girl was admiring her mother's necklace, and her mother said that when she died she would leave the necklace to her daughter. Without thinking, the husband chirped 'Oh, won't that be nice?' I don't believe they've made up yet."

ALFRED COEWIN, No. 242 Bremen street, East Boston.

"At the Summer street elevated train station the other day I lamped what I figured must be the greatest bonehead in town. As the train approached, this bimbo started waving his hands as a signal for it to stop, and from the expression on his face when it did stop, it was apparent he was taking the credit for it."

Other winners, whose contributions cannot be printed because of lack of space, are:

M. E. Merlin, No. 44 Pierce avenue, Everett.

Vaughan Choran, No. 760 Broadway, Revere.

H. R. Bennett, No. 84 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

John Conville, No. 389 Columbia street, Cambridge.

COMMERCE STARS HOPE FOR REINSTATEMENT

By FRED C. LANE.

Barney Nolan

Barney Nolan, last season's star hurler of Commerce High, and Gus Caulkins, second sacker of the Back Bay school, who were recently expelled from the baseball squad for failure to report to the track team, may be reinstated in the next few days.

This information comes from one closely identified with the situation that has existed at Commerce High since the dismissal of these two star players.

Some time in the next few days one of the assistant school superintendents will make an investigation concerning this case and on his finding will hang the fate of the two jads.

The two boys involved along with James Learson, who was dismissed as manager of the team, have taken up the issue with William G. O'Hare, a member of the school committee, who in turn told the story to the superintendents who are investigating it.

This case is one of the biggest issues this body has had to pass judgment on this season, and their finding will either restrict or increase the powers of head masters concerning athletics.

Can't Compel a Boy to Compete in Sport

There is no rule in the by-laws on sports which compels a boy to compete in athletics. This is solely up to the lad and his parents. He has a right to choose the sports he likes best.

Yet these lads were refused permission to play on the nine because of failure to take part during the indoor track season. Nolan's parents forbade him to take part on the track last Winter.

Nolan, who is a pitcher of no mean ability, showed promise to develop into a real good hurler.

It was found that after the long indoor season that Nolan lost weight. After this discovery it was decided by Nolan's parents that he should confine all his athletic activities to baseball.

Decision Crippled the Track Team

That decision crippled the track team, for Nolan was considered one of the best 600-yard runners in city high schools.

Caulkins, at the outset of the track season, was down in his studies which automatically suspended him from taking any part in track athletics.

These are the excuses offered by the boys who declare they have been discriminated against. The case of these two lads has been the sole topic of discussion at Commerce High for the past month. A feeling of resentment exists at the school which crops out now and then and adds fuel to the fire.

East Boston Plays Trade on Walpole St. Grounds

The Boston City High School League opens today on the Walpole Street Grounds. East Boston and Trade School will do the honors. This is only one of the many games that have been slated for this park.

From today on there will be a game played every day with the exception of Saturday among the district high and city school teams.

Boston Latin Meets Dorchester Tomorrow

Boston Latin meets Dorchester High there tomorrow in what promises to be a real live game. Both schools are represented by first class teams and a fast game is in store for the fans who wend their way to the former stamping grounds of the big league.

Dorchester has yet to play a game. The scheduled contest with English High, slated for Patriots' Day was postponed until next week. Latin School got off to a poor start and has suffered two defeats to date.

Coach Bill Prendergast of Dorchester will start slipher Lavon Lowke or Harold Whitmore. Both lads have had two seasons of experience at the national pastime and friends predict big things for the youthful twirlers.

Lexington Plays Woburn

Lexington High nine will play with Woburn at Library Field, Woburn, this afternoon instead of on May 23, as originally scheduled.

EAGLE TO PLAY THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

Boston College has six more home games and then will make a second excursion into the South. Three of the games will be played this week.

Vermont, as was expected, put up a battle that almost toppled the Eagle for the first time this season. There is no telling how the game would have resulted had Duba's home run been allowed. At least, the game would have gone for an extra inning.

Vermont is to be congratulated for putting up the finest fight of the season. The nearness to defeat approached by the Eagles will make them more alert. The batting practice afforded by the majority of teams that faced Boston College seemed to make the players a little over confident.

Boston Will Play Providence on Wednesday

On Wednesday Boston will play Providence. This game also is expected to be a hard one. The nine from Little Rhody is a heavy hitting crew and will be rather dangerous to the Eagle twirlers.

Rensselaer Polytech is on the card for Friday. This game should not be a very difficult assignment for the Eagle.

Next Saturday Boston will play Syracuse University. The first game with Syracuse was scheduled for the first Eagle Southern trip. Rain prevented the game, so on Saturday the strong visiting nine will take its first wallop at the Eagle.

Boston College has completed about one-fourth of the season's games. Altogether the team has done very fine work. The Eagle has been victorious in its seven games played, and in four of them Boston has scored a total of fifty-six runs against seventeen.

Wilson Forges to Front as a Heavy Batsman

Frank Wilson is rapidly forging to the front as the heaviest hitter on the squad. Against Vermont, Wilson slammed out two triples in his first two trips to the plate. He has a sharp batting eye, and takes a healthy cut at the ball. His playing in left field has been satisfactory, and his speed on the bases promises to make him one of the Eagles' best steaters.

Eddie Phillips gives new evidence in every game of his ability to run the team. Always alert, Ed can pick a man off base with deadly accuracy. Ed is a consistent hitter, and when he leans on the pill, it is good usually for extra bases.

McIntire in playing third base in a style that leaves no room for complaint, and little room for improvement. In the Vermont game, McIntire made eleven assists, and his pegs to first base were perfect.

With Steve Patten hurling excellent ball without the use of the spitter, the pitching staff has improved generally, and looks as if it will be able to hold up strong for the rest of the season.

JOCKEY KILLED BY SHOT FIRED AT BROTHER

Cincinnati, April 23 (By International News Service).—Joseph K. Redmon, 61, a well-known, horse trainer, is held in the Covington jail today on a charge of murder, following the death of Walter Andress, 28, once noted jockey, who hurled his body in the pathway of a bullet to save the life of his crippled brother, Howard, also a former jockey.

The shooting took place in the rear of the Latonia race track. Redmon walked into the Covington police station and asked: "Where's the sheriff? I've shot a man."

Henry Rittee witnessed the shooting. Howard Andress, he said, struck Redmon and Redmon drew a revolver.

Walter Andress, Rittee said, pushed his brother out of the way as the weapon barked, received the bullet and dropped dead.

Howard was crippled as a result of a serious spill on a track a few years ago. Both brothers had ridden famous horses for a number of owners.

Arlington Has Two Games

Arlington High's nine will play two games this week, both away from home. On Wednesday it will oppose Stoneham and on Saturday it will play with Winchester at Manchester Field, Winchester.

REPORT "SHEIK" AFTER RED SOX

Atlantic City, April 23.—The latest candidate to come forward as a prospective purchaser of the Boston Red Sox is Rodolph Valentino, internationally known "Sheik."

Valentino, while stopping here, declared he was financially interested in the Boston Arena, and offered to exchange his holdings in part payment for the Red Sox.

Valentino and Frazee are good friends, the baseball magnate having met the movie and vaudeville star before the "Sheik" ever thought of the amusement world.

Valentino, who is playing here for a few days, told Frazee that he was sincere in his desire to buy the Red Sox. "I certainly would like to be a major league magnate," said the movie hero.

LIARS' CONTEST WINNERS ON THIS PAGE DAILY

Liars' Contest

The Boston American offers two cents to "Lightnin'", the clever play at the Hollis Street Theatre, to the writer of every lie printed in this department.

Prizes are given for funny lies, the white lie that did the most good and the black lie that did the most harm.

Winners each day are requested to call at the office of the Boston American to get an order for their tickets.

Today's winners:

ARTHUR J. CROWTON, No. 57 Chatham road, Everett, Mass.:

"I married a widow who had a grown daughter. A year later my father married the daughter which made my father my son-in-law and my stepdaughter my stepbrother. When my son was born a year later, he became my father's brother-in-law and my own uncle for he is the brother of my stepmother. My father's wife, my stepmother, and also my stepdaughter also had a son. He, of course, is my brother and also my grandchild, for he is the son of my daughter. My wife is my grandmother, because she is my mother's mother. I am my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person grandmother is the grandfather, I am my own grandfather. My son—but there, I'm all tangled up."

"A blindfolded friend of mine came to see me the other day and asked what I could recommend for his wifey kiosh. I sent him to a motion picture place in town, where I knew they always played hair-raising thriller. He went in to see the show and an hour later I saw him in a barber shop next-door having his hair cut."

F. J. McGIVIN, No. 14 Summer street, Peabody, Mass.:

As They Do in Utopia

By Les Conklin

"I WANTED to ask a favor of you," said your Peter Pepsident to the head salesman of the Shrunken Woolen Clothing Company. "Do you remember that Spring suit I bought from you about three weeks ago?"

"Oh, yes," replied the salesman, "I remember it well because it was the only sale we made last week. What's the trouble, doesn't it fit you?"

"It fits me all right," said Peter, "but I want to change it because my girl doesn't like the color. You see she had trouble with her eyesight last Winter and it hurts her eyes to look at a green suit."

"That certainly is too bad," sympathized the salesman. "Have you worn the suit very much?"

"Only seven or eight times," said Peter hopefully. "And all except for the [illegible] on the fronts where I sat on a piece of flypaper it is just as good as new."

"Well, I guess we can arrange it for you," said the salesman cordially, "although we will have to take that [illegible] count. We don't like this quantity but, of course, we are always willing to make an exception to the rule now and then in order to keep a customer's trade."

"Father, may I have a hundred dollars?" asked pretty Madeline Moronsky, as she playfully bit her parent's ear. "I want to get a new evening gown."

"Good Heavens, Madeline, you spend a fortune on those things," exclaimed Mr. Moronsky. "Every year the women wear less and less and you your bills keep increasing. If it ever got so that girls wore no clothes at all, I would be bankrupt."

"And you just had a new dress last week," continued Mr. Moronsky.

"But, father, I can't wear the same one twice," protested Madeline. "The other girls would think that it was the only one I had."

"Oh, well, I suppose you can have it," said her father in resignation. "I'll get the money for you by cancelling that case of whiskey I ordered last week."

What do you mean by speeding down Main street at forty miles an hour?" shouted Traffic Officer Casey as he pulled along side of the big red roadster.

"I'm in a big hurry, explained the youth at the wheel.

"In a hurry, are you?" thundered the cop. "Well, I'll put you some place where you won't have to worry about anything like that."

"You see I'm taking a quart of ice cream to my best girl and I want to get there before it all melts," interrupted the young man.

"Oh, that's different," apologized Casey. "If that's the case, pardon me for stopping you. If you don't mind, I'll come along with you and have a dish of it myself!"

Medbury Says---

By John P. Medbury

A SCHOOL has been organized in New York where they teach table manners, but before they teach us how to eat food, they ought to show us how to get it.

ONCE it is on the table we know what to do with it.

NOBODY is going to starve to death just because he doesn't know how to eat properly.

WHEN you got ready to eat you'd be liable to put the doughnut in your pocket and dip the book in your coffee.

OF course the instructions say it's not proper to dip a doughnut in your coffee. No; you're supposed to put the doughnut on your plate and pour the coffee over it.

MOST men sit as far away from the table as possible so that when they drop any food off their knife it will go on the carpet and not on their trousers.

THIS saves time. You can use a carpet sweeper on the rug, but you have to send your trousers out to the cleaner's.

OF course if you sit up good and close the food won't drop on either of them; it will fall on the table cloth.

THIS won't please your hostess, but what do you care; after she sees you eat once, the chances are she won't invite you again anyway.

SOME hostesses put so many knives, forks and spoons at your place that you have to have a guide sit next to you to show you what ones to use first.

THEN by the time you pick out the proper spoon to eat your ice cream with it will probably be melted.

WHEN attending a dinner party you should never ask for a second helping, unless it's where you can't reach it.

IT'S nice to wait and have things passed to you but the people who do their own stretching are always the healthiest.

AS a rule it's polite to let a lady sit down at the table first. The chances are you can beat her to the next helping anyway.

AND remember, it's very ill-bred to wipe the silverware off before you use it, it soils the napkins so.

THIS school for table manners is a wonderful idea and it should be good news to people who are having a hard job getting anything to eat.

Bobbie and His Pa

WE have got sum stuff at skool to stick paipers together, it is named Mewsilage, I doant know if that is spelled rite. Our teecher sed we shud rite a essay about it, so I asked Pa to help me

Well Bobbie, sed Pa, that is a very sticky subjeck to rite a essay about, but here goes, sed Pa.

It mite be well, Bobbie, sed Pa, to state the varus uses wich Mewsilage is used for, such as sealing letters, pasting things in scrap books, putting paiper on wall, etc.

They doant use Mewsilage to put paiper on walls, sed Ma. they use paste.

Who is rifeing this essay? sed Pa. I or a paiper hanger? sed Pa.

Go ahed, go ahed, sed Ma, parding me for forgeting that I doant count in these intellect-tial evvnings, sed Ma. Forgive me, sed Ma, I will erase myself out of the seen, sed Ma.

You better stay, sed Pa. Maybe I will need yure help in fixing this essay for Bobbie. Mewsilage, sed Bobbie, sed Pa, is a grate help in the bizness wurld & in offices, etc. It keeps things from flying to pieces, sed Pa. It is too bad they can't use moar of it in law offices to keep husbands & wifes together, sed Pa. Sumtimes a married husband & wife goes two separiti roads, Bobbie, sed Pa, wen if the lawyer he uses the Mewsilage of kindness & common sense he cud keap them from getting di-vorced from each other

That is one of the grate trubbels with our Sivvilizashun, sed Ma. There isent enuff of the Mewsilage of kindness & understanding, sed Ma. Many peepul that separates often wish afterward that they had used the Mewsilage of kindness & stuck it out, sed Ma.

That is what I always used, sed Pa. No matter how hard life seamed to me at times, sed Pa, I stuck to my bizness, dident I? sed Pa. I stuck like a heero, like John Maynard holding out at the boat's wheel, didnt I? sed Pa.

Yes, sed Ma, & you always stuck to yureself pritty good, too, sed Ma. You used the Mewsilage of con-seet, wich maiks peepul stuck up, sed Ma. & then eether Pa or Ma dident say enny moar, I will end this eessay rite here & grab sum supper.

IMPROVE PRODUCTION BY DIRECTING YOUR MOVES BY HEADWORK

You may be afraid of losing your job, and in order to keep it you are making physical effort enough, but scattered mental effort.

You want to do a whole lot with your hands, but you give little attention or thought to making your mind increase production.

In your eagerness to please you make many mistakes which you know better than to do. Because your mind is not fully concentrated on its work your nervousness annoys the ones you wish to please.

Cool down. Get under better mental control

Make up your mind that you are going to increase and improve your production, not by making false moves, but by directing your moves by headwork

You will get more accomplished do a better grade of work and strengthen your hold on your job if you call together your forces.

The man who is a real judge of men will give needed advice to willing, nervous workers; he will tell them where they fail and how to improve.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

By Ann Lisle

(Whose Serials of Married Life Have Won a Big Success)

JIM and I belong to each other. We have found happiness again—and together. The days of separation and unhappiness are gone and forgotten. It doesn't seem as if they can have any power over our future.

Each day in the apartment of Hetty Winston, loaned us for our honeymoon, has brought some new joy, some renewal of old understanding.

One morning I woke at the touch of a finger of light on my eyelids. I opened my eyes and smiled at the tiny golden beam that had managed to find its way through the drawn curtains.

For the first time since Jim came back to me I was alone. Thoughts and questions came crowding in on me. For the first time since his return I felt the full responsibility of love. I stepped through Hetty's guest room of my most exquisite experiences. He wasn't ashamed of much that we've been through.

When we found that Mary was dead and had been not my father, when we realized that Jim's title to Great Hope, on which my parents had lavished money and care, was worthless, we turned about from all that was back of us and started life over.

We've lived it twice, another honeymoon. We've arrived at happiness. Now I find myself shivering with fear that it had been too good to last. When my terror was at its worst, but I could bear, I closed my eyes, my feet, starting automatically toward the kitchen.

I started the coffee, mixed the corn muffins, set out the platter for the bacon that wasn't to be crisp enough for Jim. Then I cut the grapefruit, which he likes best when it's done the last second before being brought to the table.

When the coffee had been set on the back of the stove to keep hot and the bacon put back to broil the muffins were taking on their final shade of warm brown, I opened the kitchen door and went to the breakfast room to lay the table.

There it stood, already set, sparkling with china and glass. And in the centre of the table was a marvelous bouquet of yellow roses.

I backed away from the table with my hand on my heart. It was aching again, but this time with happiness. Then fingers were pressed against my eyes, and Jim's voice asked mysteriously:

"Does who?"

"Some one I love?" I cried while I ran around and burying my face against his coat. Then I looked up and whispered "Some one who's a darling. Oh, Jim, you know are the loviest flowers for a bridal bouquet. And you set the table, too. You're so sweet!"

"Glad you like my surprise. The lavender ribbons are for my Lady Princess, the lilies for her sweetness and the roses are for my sweetheart, bless her."

The depths of tenderness in Jim's voice made me glow. I nestled close for a second. Then Jim inquired:

"Do we eat?"

"I guess the bacon's burned to a crisp," I said ruefully.

We made merry over our little feast, and it was half over before I asked with a great air of casualness the question I was longing to have answered.

"How did you happen to—get up in the middle of the night and go out for flowers dear?"

"Why, sweetheart this is the last day of our honeymoon. I wanted it to be perfect for you."

"You don't want to go back," he said quietly. "You want to be just my wife. Belonging to me—that's what makes you happy. That's enough for you, isn't it, Lilac Princess?"

The telephone clashed out stridently. It seemed to be sounding a warning deep within me—but a summons from the outside world.

I choked back the answer Jim's intensity had almost wrung from me and went to answer the call.

"Jim, it was Jeanie at the phone," I explained, returning from answering the call that broke in on the moment when I felt Jim's need of me to be so great that I must give up my business and devote myself entirely to him. "She wanted us to come to Dreamwold for a good old fashioned 4 o'clock Sunday dinner. Of course, I told her we couldn't."

"You tell her we couldn't?" Jim exclaimed. But that won't cess. Shall I go call Jeanie back again and—tell her we appreciate the attention* Shall I, dear?"

"Wheedler!" I cried. "When you coax me like that you can get me to do any old thing at all. And you know it."

"Do I?" asked Jim with a laugh I took for triumph. Then he kissed me and hurried off to telephone Jeanie.

After several minutes he came to the kitchen door and lounged there for a moment, puffing his pipe, against a little shade he keeps back of the door, and came over to my side. Lightly he laid his lips against my hair. Softly he murmured:

"Even dishwashing has an air of poetry and mystery when the Lilac Princess presides at the flowing bowl—of suds!"

From Here

"By the way, where do we go from here—from Hetty's apartment, I mean? Have you not been clever enough to persuade the tenants of our own diggings to vamoose at a moment's notice?"

"I don't know—know if there are any tenants," I replied blankly.

"You don't know?"

There was a world of something in Jim's question. I felt that it was first reproach.

"I left it to Carlotta," I confessed. And I didn't want to nag her about it. She has so much on her mind."

"Never mind, dear," said Jim generously, adding with a laugh which covered the worry he want ed to conceal:

"I suppose now you're here, Rose will return home," I said, making my eagerness under a light tone.

"Oh, Jim!" I protested, et thought we'd be rid of her"

"Not at all," returned Jim "She's at Dreamwold now. We an idea you don't understand her, dear. But don't antagonize her She's thorough in whatever she does."

Then, as we turned in the Dreamwold gate, a little figure fluttered across the path and held up a hand to stop us. It was Rosa, brilliant in a cape and hood of scarlet with touches of gray fur. She made my own costume seem staid and dull She looked like a vivid little child But her voice had the intensity of a poised woman as she vaulted in to the car, exclaiming

"See how eager I am to welcome you Jaime. It is so long since we have had good talks together. I miss it. You miss it, too Verdad Jaime?" she demanded.

"Of course," said Jim gallantly Then, as if he suddenly sensed how she was ignoring me, he added: "I was just telling Anne what great friends we've come to be."

"Oh, yes!" said Rosa, turning to me with a slow smile. "Here is Anne."

Insolence in Tone

There was a conscious impolence in her tone It told me that I didn't count. I looked at Jim to see if he was aware of the challenging quality in Rosa's manner to me

But he was staring out at the familiar grounds of the old Hanson homestead He was thinking of the best end of what it could actually see before him in the present. He had no thought of undercurrents or of a future toward which they might be sweeping him

We were having coffee in the Dreamwold living room after our delicious mid day dinner, when Betty, who was Joanie's house guest home, suddenly

"IS that so? Well, let me tell you something you don't know and that's this—I've fired that young feller"

"Going to let McNair grab him off, I suppose."

"Never mind what I'm going to do—he's fired—I told him so last night"

"Not like you, Cappy," said Skinner, surprised to find himself championing the cause of the young man he'd turned down

"Not a peep out of you, Skinner, it's your treatment of him in the first place that soured my sweet disposition"

Skinner left chuckling, he'd gotten rid of most of the spruce and that was the main thing, and he didn't feel sorry for Bill, because he reasoned that a man who could sell that stuff wouldn't be long out of a job

Before Bill turned up at the office he was the subject of a heated discussion. "I hear Bill Peck was fired by Mr Ricks last night," said a clerk to the telephone girl, and the conversation revolved on the whys and wherefores.

But Bill showed no signs of disintegration when he thrust his smiling face into the office. "Hello everybody," he greeted as though he owned the whole place.

"Gee, but you're the cheerful guy," said the information clerk, "I thought Mr. Ricks gave you the gate."

"He did, but I crawled under it by the way, I want to see Mr Skinner"

That gentleman was coming out of his own office at the second ajpoe. "Hello, Mr Skinner. "I've got some news for you."

"Oh, I didn't mean that," said Bill. "I've sold some more of that spruce—I guess we'll be able to get rid of the rest of it in a day or so."

Mr. Skinner could not be deaf to this appeal—his voice was not an aggressive as he replied to the best salesman he'd ever had

"That's all right, but you're fired, and what are you doing here?"

"Fired?" queried Bill, "Maybe I am, but I am waiting for official news, and I'm here because I've asked a young lady to luncheon.'

This inspiration of the luncheon came to Mr. Peck when he saw Miss Skinner coming in from the great outdoors

Her father's eyes strayed for a moment to his daughter: "Yes, sir," said Bill, "I've invited Miss Skinner to have lunch with me and—how do you do, Miss Skinner?" he went on, advancing to hold out his hand to Mary

Miss Skinner met looked from Bill to her father and also took in the faces of the office force; there was a general interest in Bill Peck's proceedings, even though that interest was cleverly concealed under an assumption of hard work.

"Have you accepted an invitation to lunch with this young man?" growled Skinner.

"Why—have I—have I?" Mary caught Bill's eye—if ever man pleaded for help, he did. "Why, yes, I'd almost forgotten it."

Bill's face was radiant. "You'd better forget it now," said her father, "Mr. Peck is no longer connected with this office."

"You see," said Bill, "I shan't have to hurry back"

This was too much for the equanimity of Mary's father. "Hurry back," he shouted, "Mr. Ricks has discharged you—and I forbid my daughter taking lunch with you now or at any time."

"Dear me; dear me," came Cappy's voice, "what's all this?"

"This young man you've fired, refuses to go," said Skinner.

"Fired?" Who said he was fired? There's something wrong somewhere. And I object to being fired before I've had my say. Didn't he get that skunk spruce for us?"

"You told me," sputtered Skinner

"Tut, tut," interrupted Cappy, planting himself in front of Bill and the girl; now what did I tell you, Skinner—don't wait for me, young people, if you're on the way out."

And while Mary and the exhilarated salesman made a hurried exit Cappy linked his arm with his partner's and walked smoking joyfully into the general manager's office.

[illegible] when they re finished, "I some times think your judgment of men—now I have made up my mind that Bill Peck is the man for me to train we want for the Sharg hai office

"Oh, you have," en fled Skinner

"Have a clear and see whether you don't agree with me."

Mr. Skinner declined the cigar and also declined to agree

"I'm not quite sure," Cappy went on. "I think I shall have to give him with the rest of the line sales—if he pulls that off that will settle it. He has every mark of a go-getter, but of course that will decide it."

"You know what happened last time you tried it," Skinner admonished him

"Yes, but we'll be more careful this time. I'm in a hurry about that China situation, and I think I'll stage the little affair next Sunday Now, couldn't you invite Bill to your house and then get him up to mine under some pretext—tell Mary I want to see her; that'll bring him."

NERVOUS CHILD

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

IT ought to be borne in mind that nervousness in children is often acquired through imitation of irritable persons given to attacks of temper and exhibiting but little emotional control. What is blamed on heredity, in other words is simply due to the children's environment.

Children of nervous temperament frequently overcome to a considerable extent any defects that are hereditary if their environment is such that an opportunity is afforded them to imitate people who have good self control.

Young children are strongly imitative, and therefore great advantage may be taken of this fact in the management of normal as well as nervous children. They must be set a good example.

Children disposed to be nervous must be watched, but they must not know that they are the objects of solicitude. Too often they are made the victims of suggestion.

ENERGY OF BIRDS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

THE opening of Spring has brought back many of the bird visitors among those that I have noted are two robins and two sparrows. They have been exhibiting a difference of character, it seems to me, from the human point of view.

Both pairs have been courting and building nests. The robins are very timid, very secretive and easily driven away by any interference. The sparrows, on the contrary are very bold ready to place their nest anywhere provided only that the situation seems cat proof) regardless of who sees or watches them, and utterly defiant concerning interference and rubon

If the robins are driven from a tree that they have chosen they go away and try elsewhere, but it is evident that it would take very little opposition to their proceedings to discourage them entirely, so that they would seek another neighborhood But if I drive away the sparrows from the spot which they prefer, but which I would rather have left vacant, a council of war is held and its domestic accommodations back are come, and begin over again

But if I broke up the robin [illegible] I believe that they would not go again within a radius of half a mile.

These are "English sparrows" that I speak of, and their conduct probably explains why native birds generally avoid their company, and the company of those to be found in cities.

Yet they certainly exhibit two fine qualities, as valuable to human as to birds—persistence and energy. And to these may be added courage. I believe there are few fathers or mothers who would not rather have their children's [illegible] the qualities shown by these sparrows than those of the robins.

Their exhibition of energy is the most wonderful thing about these birds. It is easier, while watching them at work to believe the theory that energy is nothing but electricity. They seem to be electrical pictures forever in motion, with speed that the eye is not quick enough to follow. The rapid, short, sharp chirps [illegible] seems like a spirit of energy [illegible]

The robins are lackadaisical They would never "see the Spirit River afire." But these restless bursting gray browns would in a moment. That is why they can have their nest wherever they like to have it. Energy is the creator of both courage and perseverance Every leader and commander of men shows something of this strange power. The man who possesses it in any noble degree cannot be a failure To learn whether you have it, watch your self and see whether you would rather do nothing than do something. Energy loves work.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

"I hope you'll pardon my not giving my name to the warden of the portal, out there," began the visitor, with a slight smile, "but I fancy I'm taking a bit of a risk in coming to see you, Mr. Chase, and for the present I'd rather remain incog. so far as your office force is concerned. Now that I'm inside, however, here is my card."

Chase glanced at the name and nodded in pleased recognition.

"I saw one of your pictures last night," he said. "The one where Sylvia Staley takes the part of the little country girl who becomes a famous actress. She's certainly a peach of a looker."

"And a lady, every inch of her," the other informed him. "I'd rather direct her than any star we have."

"I should think you might. Her pictures have been getting better right along."

"I'm pleased to hear you say so, Mr. Chase. You must be quite a fan."

Sinister Influences

"I am, and I don't mind admitting it. These people who are always running down the motion pictures make me tired. Just look what the pictures have done for this city. Look what they've done for Hollywood."

The visitor's face took on a look of eager interest. "I am still more pleased to hear you say that," he declared. "I wasn't sure where to go at first, but now I know I've come to the right man. Mr. Chase, there's an influence at work in Hollywood that must be checked, and soon, too."

"Dope!"

"Yes; did you know about it?"

"We get rumors once in a while. Nothing definite enough to act on."

"Then I take it that you haven't any definite idea how fast the use of that stuff is spreading."

"I'm afraid I haven't. Is it pretty bad?"

"You'd think so if you'd been through what I have lately. I've seen enough to convince me that if something isn't done about it the reputation of the entire community will suffer.

"There'll be a scandal of some kind, God knows what, that will give the entire motion picture industry a bad name. I can see it coming.

"That Arbuckle incident up in San Francisco was bad enough. Of course, if the girl hadn't died, nobody would have heard anything about it, but she did, and now all our ill wishers from coast to coast have been presented with a fresh supply of ammunition. It was only the mercy of the saints, Mr. Chase, that the Arbuckle party wasn't given in Hollywood instead of in San Francisco."

"Then you do have parties like that out in Hollywood?"

The visitor's face took on a look of eager interest. "Now I know I have come to the right man"

"If by you you mean all of us out there I'd say 'no,' but it's true that among a certain element there have been some pretty wild sessions. The majority of the people employed in the studios are decent, hard-working, home-loving folks, but there's a small percentage of them who are decidedly the opposite. I don't say that any of us are wearing halos, Mr. Chase. I've taken most of the hurdles in my time, and I'm a long way from being averse to a bit of gayety. I dare say that any time a crowd of us get together of an evening in some one's home there is a wider latitude of speech and action than would be considered good form in the parlor of a paroxysm, but that's merely because our profession tends to make us broad minded and because we all know each other so well. No one thinks any the less of any one else for getting a trifle too hilarious now and again."

Wealth and Brains

"Of course not," agreed Chase. "I can have a good time at that kind of a party myself."

"Precisely, but that's not the sort of thing I'm talking about. The danger lies in the little groups of exotic individuals who get together with the idea of discovering some new sensation. In one case in a dozen I don't even blame them for that, but the trouble is they haven't the strength of character to do it successfully. You know, Mr. Chase, a large number of the people whose pictures you see on the screen are just children, even some of the best known of them. They have little education to sustain them and when money comes pouring into their laps they don't know what to do with it. Their mental resources are limited so they go in for luxuries that cater to the grossest, sensual sensuousness, fine clothes, rare perfumes—all that sort of thing."

Effect of Drug Habit

"You can hardly blame them for that," observed Chase. "People who are made suddenly rich all act like that."

"Yes, but it's worse with us because our people are so widely known. Anything one of them does reflects upon all the others. They're gay and irresponsible by nature and they want to get all out of life that they can. It's just because I'm fond of them and sympathize with them heartily that I can't stand it to see them forsaking the simpler pleasures and taking up something that to my certain knowledge spells nothing but disaster and death."

"I gather from that, then, that you have seen something of the effects of the drug habit."

"Have I? Rather! It's been the curse of my life. Not that I've ever taken the stuff myself, but I've seen what it did to those I was fond of, Mr. Chase, and all my memories of it are bitter ones. When I think of the misery that lurks in the juice of the poppy I sometimes wonder why the Creator ever brought such an evil flower into being."

"The flower is all right as a flower. It's only—" began Chase, but the director interrupted him by continuing rapidly, "Oh, I know. It's only what Man does with it that's wrong. You're perfectly right, of course, but you'll forgive me for feeling as I do about it when I tell you that only a little while ago I discovered one of our most popular stars, a young woman for whom I have the greatest respect and affection, had become a victim of the damned stuff."

"What kind?"

Young Movie Director, in Love With Film Star, Shot to Death After Giving Evidence

"Where did she get it; do you know?"

"I think so. That's why I'm here." The director drew from his inner coat pocket a folded sheet of paper. "This is in the nature of a report, Mr. Chase. Just how good it is as evidence I can't say, but at least it will furnish you with a basis for investigation. As soon as I found out what was the matter with this young lady I began looking into the situation, and I must admit I was startled at what I found. For the present I think the habit is confined principally to the unknowns, the extra women and extra men—queer, decadent specimens, many of them—hangers-on whom we have to use occasionally, but who were born vicious and would be vicious anyhow, whether they were playing in pictures or sailing ribbons. Nevertheless, they manage to draw some of the more prominent members of the profession into their festivities from time to time and that's where the danger lies. I think I traced a quantity of the stuff to its source. You will find names and addresses there, both of those who furnish the drugs and those who peddle it, as well as quite a list of their regular customers."

Chase ran his eye swiftly over the typewritten page. "Does any one know you were preparing this?" he asked.

"Yes, one fan knows it, and that's what makes me a bit uneasy. He's a chap named Vaughn. I hired him only a short time ago as a secretary. I knew nothing whatever about him when I engaged him and I don't know any more now. My Chinese houseboy caught him looking at that paper this morning. He had taken it from my private desk, where he had no business, and when he saw he had been detected he packed up and was off like a shot. He may not intend to make any use of the information, but I thought it was best to hop along down here and get the data into your hands before anything happened."

The Murder

The man in the swivel chair looked grave. "You realize the danger in all this, I suppose?" he asked. "Perfectly," replied the director.

"And would you be willing to testify against any of these people in case we landed them?" "I'd be delighted to get the opportunity."

"Well, you have plenty of nerve," I'll say that."

"Nonsense. I'll take a sporting risk any day on the calendar. For the sake of the community where I make my home, and the industry which gives me my living, and the people I call my friends, I'd take a bigger chance than that, Mr. Chase. It's jolly well worth it."

Upon receiving Chase's assurance that he would get busy on the case within the week, the director took his departure, leaving the office by a private exit. The second afternoon following this interview Chase picked up his afternoon paper in the office and was met by a screaming headline: "Motion Picture Director Murdered in His Home!" His eye sought the name of the victim, and, finding it, reeled there. Slowly he let the paper fall into his lap.

"By Jupiter, they didn't waste any time," he exclaimed, half aloud. "Now then, which one of them was it?"

Once more he took up the newspaper. "All evidence goes to show that he was shot down from behind, without a chance for his life," read the account. "The body was found on the floor in the living room. Beside it, amid the fragments of a broken bowl, lay a handful of scarlet poppies."

CHAPTER II.

We'd got the stuff as far as New York with never a slip. Hid in the coal bunkers, it was and nobody the wiser. All we had to do was get it ashore and we could sell it for enough to lay up in Queenstown the rest of the Summer, with all the drink we'd be needin' and never a tap of work. They was eight of us in on it, and that was bad because of its cuttin' down the profits so cruel, but the stuff we had with us was the prime grun and a terrible bulky. Two or three of us never could have got ashore with it. The custom hounds would have nabbed us, sure as death."

Old Phil Cronin paused to place his curly beneath his teeth while he ground a pinch of tobacco in his leathery palm with the heel of the other hand. The seven-year lad seated opposite him in the harness room waited patiently while this process was completed and the load set to glowing in the little black bowl.

"Yes, and then?" he prompted, as the first curl of smoke floated upward.

"Then the question was, how could we get all them packages off the ship?"

WHAT THE SPARROWS SAID

BUNNY, Bobby and I were sitting one day in the park. Up in a tree above our heads we heard a great disturbance. There were dozens of little sparrows—what a big noise those little birds made!

Then, all of a sudden, one sparrow flew down and the rest followed him, and they started hopping around, but they continued their animated conversation.

We sat very quietly and watched them. I could not help wondering what all the commotion was about because if those sparrows were talking, it was about something interested them very much.

I said to Bunny:

"Bunny, do you understand animal talk and bird language. Just hop over there and see what those little sparrows are talking about, will you?"

Bunny hopped down off the bench and went over near the spot where the birds were gathered in a group and started nibbling the grass. Of course, the sparrows didn't pay any attention to him; they went right on with their discussion.

He nibbled awhile and then he came running back to us and told us what he had heard.

Bunny said that one sparrow was making a speech to the other sparrows, saying:

"It is an outrage for people to think we are a nuisance. We are good American citizens and we do all that we can to keep this country free from bugs which eat trees and spoil crops."

One little saucy sparrow came forward and asked:

"Who started all this talk against us anyhow?"

Then there was a fearful chattering and chirping and the leader had to flap his wings and chirp louder than all the rest before he could answer the question, because they were all shouting. One indignant little bird chirped.

"It's the robins—those big, fat red-breasted robins, that are just growing bigger and fatter every day and eating all the worms in the country. They're jealous of us."

At last the sparrow quieted down and the leader spoke again:

"You shouldn't feel that way, my friends. It is true that the robins used to fight with us when we started to outnumber them, but that is no reason why we should feel badly or be mad at them. There is room and work for us all. Why don't we all live happily together. We sparrows have our work to do and the robins have theirs."

Hurray! Hurray!" shouted all the sparrows.

This started the sparrows to thinking of all the bugs they had to eat and away they flew.

The meeting ended happily. Bunny said. All the sparrows voted to keep up the good work for which they originally had been brought across the ocean to do.

(How Bunny changed the minds of the galloping wolves will be told in tomorrow's story.

ANSWER TO PICTURE PROBLEM

A widow should continue to use her husband's name, as "Mrs. John Black," on her cards, never her own Christian name. The same ruling applies to a divorcee, except in the latter case she may, if her maiden name was Ellen Jones, and she married George Brown, write "Mrs. Jones Brown" on her card, but never Mrs. Ellen Brown.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza

THE average woman rightly considers cold cream an invaluable aid to her complexion loveliness. She probably uses it instead of soap and water to cleanse her face.

Now and then, however, a girl proves an exception to this rule.

This "exception" girl has a delicate, thin, almost transparent skin, in which quick color comes and goes. She may have red hair, but although it may be blonde or even golden brown, it is always fine and soft.

Like the "little girl with the little curl right in the middle of her forehead," so far as her complexion is concerned, this girl when she is good is very good, but when she is bad she is horrid.

That is because a thin skin in perfect condition is unusually beautiful, but owing to its extreme delicacy, it is too often cracked with the wind, wrinkled into tiny lines by lack of sleep or worry, or marred because of the use of the very beautifying agents, such as glycerin, which bring smooth loveliness to the thicker, more normal skin.

Until she learns her own individual skin needs, her friends in speaking of this girl may remark: "What glorious hair Mary has!" But not one of them is likely to add: "And what a lovely complexion!"

Now it is this bright-haired, thin-skinned, sensitive "Mary" whom I would like so very much to help today.

She has tried a dozen cold creams. One is too oily and brings blackheads, a second roughens and dries her skin. She tries a vanishing cream and this with its glycerine base proves most unfortunate of all.

Here, dear, is my suggestion to meet your particular needs:

Treat your complexion as you would the delicate skin of a baby. Bathe once a day with warm, not hot, water and a mild, pure soap, such as castile. Be careful to clean your whole body, especially your neck, nostrils and "corners" of your face, with warm soapsuds, then rinse them first with warm, then with cool water, and dry them vigorously, but not roughly.

Eat plenty of lettuce and other salads having an olive oil dressing. Eat fruit and vegetables. Drink a pint or more of milk a day and plenty of water. Avoid coffee and tea. Keep out-of-doors, exercise, do not scowl at the sun. Sleep your full nine hours. All these measures will keep your complexion fine and clear and will prevent the premature wrinkles which sometimes mar a very thin skin.

And, above all, keep in your consciousness at all times the "oil of gladness" and good will, for that is the best of all beautifiers.

NO MYSTERY IN THE WAY POSLAM HEALS

Poslam heals skin eruptions so quickly that some folks almost believe there's a mystery about it. Not a bit!

Years ago an expert was seeking the best way to treat skin troubles. One day he made a combination of certain simple, gentle things and tried it on a very severe case of itching eczema.

To his delight it gave instant relief and began to heal. So he tried it on case after case of eczema, rash, pimples and such tormenting, unsightly affections. Almost every time it succeeded. He called it "Poslam." Its merit was immediately recognized and soon it was on sale everywhere. Added by Poslam Soap, it is bringing skin-health to thousands daily. For trial sample, send 10c to POSLAM, 243 W. 47th St., New York.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

If a small tear or hole appears in your waterproof, mend it with a piece of adhesive tape, which may be bought from any bicycle shop. If the tape is placed on the wrong side, and the torn edges neatly trimmed before pressing into position, the mended spot will scarcely show.

Washing gloves should never be put into hot water, for they will shrink and lose shape. Just warm water, with plenty of soapy lather, is the only way to wash them successfully. If the tips have disappeared from yellow chamois gloves, put a little orange peel into the soapy rinsing water.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects. All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaints, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect, 15c and 30c.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

"If your drive had been a little better it would have been a good deal worse," I remarked to a golfing partner the other day when his ball, a little off the straight, stopped just before reaching a bunker.

I feel the same way about business. If it had become very much better than it was during March, there would have been danger that it would have landed in a bunker.

Happily for us all, the real heartiness of the situation has been grasped by most financial and by many business men.

There has been some salutary restraining of what threatened to become risky, not to say reckless, pace.

We ought, therefore, to be all right if this level headedness continues and the extreme avoided in either direction.

Do not imagine for a moment that activity is not at full tide in many industries. The slowing up has not been at all disquieting, but rather the reverse. That activity is still very vigorous may be gathered from the following list of "new high records":

Output of pig iron and structural steel during March was the largest attained in this or any other country.

Construction of homes reached unprecedented volume.

Locomotive orders for the month broke all records.

Never before were there as many locomotives in service as there are today.

Demand for railway specialties is reported by the steel industry as the heaviest ever experienced.

Sales of life insurance last month were the greatest ever reported.

The indications are there will be somewhat fewer "new high records" for April than there were during March.

* * *

That the warning issued by the Department of Commerce against over-expansion and undue price boosting is being heeded is suggested by such items as these:

Price reductions record during the last three weeks distinctly exceed the price advances.

Freight car loadings fell off with the advent of April.

Rubber prices have also become easier.

The administration's bold effort to stop speculation in sugar, which has brought about a very sensational rise in prices, is exercising a restraining influence on more than the sugar speculators directly involved.

Says Dun's Review: "With all previous maximums of production and distribution surpassed in different instances, a temporary pause, at least, was to be expected. . . . There obviously is not the same incentive now to secure protection against probable forward needs. . . . Available stocks of some goods have increased."

Bradstreet's also notes that "unbounded buying for the future is rather more quiet than in recent weeks."

Bonds are off fully 3 points from the year's best.

No further inroads are being made on the high ratio of bank reserves.

The rather vague but very important thing we call "public sentiment" has undergone modification along lines which make for the longer continuance of healthy business activity.

* * *

All in all, therefore, the outlook must be regarded as having improved encouragingly.

Oils Most Soft and Active When Weakness Again Develops in Stock Market

STEEL GROUP IS LIVELY AND LOWER

Oil issues were most soft and active when weakness again developed today in the New York stock market. In this market renewing at 4½ per cent. The steel group around noon became lively and lower. Losses from previous sessions to around points.

Kreuke was up 4 at 245.

Opening prices were irregular. A gain of 2 points by Kinney Company was an outstanding change in the early trading. Sugar and oil shares were in fair demand, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, American Sugar and Pan American and the stock showing moderate advances.

Subsequent dealings showed a tendency upward with the demand covering varied shares.

Gains of a point or more were recorded by Lake Erie & Western preferred, American Waterworks, Phillips Petroleum, Corn Products, Jones Ten, American Linseed and Pan-American.

Stocks which were recently under pressure rebounded sharply and the oil issues were indifferent to the announcement of further cuts in gasoline and aeroplane prices. Railroad shares were rather quiet, but prices held well with the exception of Canadian Pacific which declined one point.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, demand sterling was quoted around 4.45 and francs at around 6.67½c. An advance of two points.

RUSSIA PUTS OFF TIKHON'S TRIAL

Moscow April 23 (By the Associated Press).—The trial of the Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former patriarch of all Russia, on a charge of treason and hindering the carrying out of Soviet orders, set for tomorrow, has been indefinitely postponed, this time indefinitely.

Lausanne, April 23 (By the Associated Press).—A member of the Soviet delegation to the last Near East conference declared on arrival here today the life of Vicar-General Butchkavitch would have been secured if the powers had left intervention to the Vatican. He said Poland's aggressive attitude forced Russia's hand.

"You cannot treat a great power like Russia in that way," he said. "Russia will never yield on purely internal questions to foreign threats or menaces."

TRAVEL BRIEFS
NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

Present-day conditions have made the dining car a positive necessity on through and limited trains, but the yet no practical methods have ever been devised to make a profit on the dining car.

It may surprise many persons who have patronized dining cars to learn that the net result from the operation of a dining car is a deficit. But when the peculiar and uncommon conditions which surround this service are studied the wonder is why it does not lose more money.

During 1922 the Burlington Route operated forty dining cars which served 890,360 meals, an average of 24,753 per car, or sixty-eight meals per car per day.

The cost per meal of operating this service was: Food, 54 cents; wages, 40 cents; renewals and repairs to kitchen and dining room equipment, 9 cents; superintendence and storeroom expense, 5 cents; laundry, 4 cents; general repairs, ice, coal, fuel, cleaning, insurance, depreciation and miscellaneous expenses, 33 cents, or a total of $1.44. The average receipt per meal was 90 cents, leaving a deficit of 54 cents, or $525,573 for the year. This does not include the cost of hauling the cars.

Necessarily, there is a very large and unpreventable loss on food supplies due to the impracticability of assigning to cars the exact quantity of each and every item ordered which the varying appetites of an unknown number of patrons will demand, to say nothing about changes of weather and in climate. For, unlike a restaurant manager, the steward of a dining car has no opportunity to send around the corner for additional supplies as needed.

In the final analysis, therefore, we have a restaurant representing an investment of about $50,000, running around the country on wheels, requiring for its proper operation a crew of from nine to eleven men, having an exceptionally high and yet unavoidable over-expense, its patronage limited entirely to those passengers on the same train who choose to patronize it, with the natural result that it is impossible to "make both ends meet."

NEW FAST TRAIN OF C. & N. W.

Effective April 29, a new fast passenger train will leave Chicago at 10:25 a. m., daily, via the Chicago & North Western Railway, arriving in Milwaukee at 12:35 p. m. In St. Paul, Minn., at 10:50 p. m., and Minneapolis, at 10:50 p. m.

Southbound, this train will leave Minneapolis at 6:20 p. m. daily; St. Paul at 7 p. m., arriving in Milwaukee at 4:55 a. m., and Chicago at 6:55 a. m.

Northbound the train will be called the "Viking." It will consist of observation car, parlor car, dining car and coaches, and will be all-steel equipment.

This splendid train is in addition to the other fast passenger trains now in operation, leaving Chicago at 2:06 a. m., 8:15 a. m., 5:20 p. m., 8:30 p. m. (the famous North Western Limited), and 10 p. m.

DAYLIGHT SAVING SAILING.

Effective with the sailing of May 8, ships of the Southern Pacific Lines (Morgan Line) will leave New York at 10 o'clock noon, daylight saving time, or 11 a. m. Eastern standard time.

During the Summer season all steamers in the Southern Pacific Steamship Lines passenger fleet are equipped with electric fans, thus eliminating any possibility of discomfort from "stuffiness" or possible high temperature.

NEW CAVE IN GLACIER PARK.

The discovery of a new cave in Glacier National Park, which opens up possibilities for exploration, is announced by the Dominion Parks Branch. The new cave is said by far the largest in the series of subterranean caverns in the National Park, known as Nakimu Caves, and it has been discovered by workmen engaged in development work. The new chamber is located at 436 feet long and from 12 to 16 feet in width, with an approximate height of 100 feet.

ROCK ISLAND CROP REPORTS.

Announcement is made by the local office of the Rock Island lines of the resumption of publication of the famous Rock Island Crop Reports for the season of 1923. These reports will be issued semi-monthly as heretofore.

The information will be obtained within forty-eight hours of publication, and will give, as near as possible, the true status of crop conditions in the States which are traversed by the Rock Island lines, namely: Illinois, Iowa, Southern Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico.

Those interested in receiving copies of this report regularly may arrange to have them sent, without cost, by communicating with E. R. Hines, general agent, Rock Island lines, at room 2, Old South Building, Boston.

ON SOUTHERN CRUISE.

Among the passengers booked to sail Saturday on the S. S. Calamares of the United Fruit Company for Cuba, Panama and Costa Rica, were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. French and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Bond of Boston.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

The residential property at No. 35 Cypress place, Brookline, comprising a frame dwelling house and 11,324 square feet of land, has been sold for the estate of Alice W. Bancroft to William Sundell of Brookline. The total assessed value is $10,400, of which $6,400 is on the land. The sale was negotiated by Edward R. Miller.

Edward F. Cassell has purchased from Mary J. Hinckley the property at No. 1554 Dorchester avenue and Nos. 4-8 Wrentham street, Dorchester, consisting of a frame building containing stores and apartments, together with 4134 square feet of land, having a total assessed value of $14,500, of which $3,000 is on the land.

Edward F. Cassell has sold to Harry Antoni the property at No. 183 Broadway, Everett, consisting of a three-family house and lot of land, assessed for a total of $6,500.

Frederick G. Hall and Evelyn Ames Hall have transferred to Sarah Elizabeth Campbell title to the four-story brick and stone dwelling and 1,421 square feet of land at No. 81 Pinckney street, Beacon Hill. The total tax value is $9,000, of which $5,700 is on the land. The purchaser will occupy. The brokerage in the sale were Street & Co.

John C. Kiley & Co., as auctioneers, have sold for Andrew J. Peters, trustee, twenty-three lots of land in the Forest Hills district. The sale was well attended and indicated that, although land is not sharing in the upward tendency of commodity prices, there is a strong underlying buying power. The price of the lots averaged from 10 to 29 cents a square foot and contained from 3,000 to 4,000 square feet.

Total loan appropriations authorized for Boston's high pressure fire service was $1,000,000, all expended by 1920, when money was raised.

Boston's Taxi Service

Nothing to Justify the High Rates in Spite of Commissioner Wilson's Statement

Police Commissioner Wilson told the Boston City Council the other day:

Considering the quality of taxi service given in Boston in contrast to that of other cities where rates may be somewhat lower, I think local tariffs are fair.

This newspaper has never found anything to criticize in Mr. Wilson's conduct and we regret that we must make our first criticism. As much as we dislike to do it, we are compelled to say that Mr. Wilson is quite disingenuous in this statement. That he is speaking as a partisan is quite evident from the statement itself.

When he says that in other cities the rates MAY BE SOMEWHAT lower, he is obviously intending to minimize a contrast which is very sharp and striking and against the interests of Boston. It is not possible for any man who wants to be fair to say that the rates MAY BE SOMEWHAT lower in other cities. In other big cities the rates ARE A GREAT DEAL lower. There isn't any doubt about it. If Commissioner Wilson has made the investigation which enables him to have any opinion AT ALL upon the taxi situation in Boston as compared with the taxi situation in other cities, he knows NOT that they MAY be, but they actually ARE, not SOMEWHAT, but a GREAT DEAL lower in other cities.

He justifies the higher prices in Boston upon the assumption that "the quality of the taxi service given in Boston is better." How does he reach that conclusion? Who will agree with him? Are our drivers more skilful? Certainly not. We have no criticism to make of our taxi-drivers. They are as skilful as the taxi-drivers of any other cities. But they are not any more skilful. Are our cars better? Certainly not. We exceed the other comparable cities in our taxi service in nothing except the high prices charged.

There is absolutely nothing to justify the prices for taxi service in Boston that we have been able to discover. Just what hold the taxi service has had upon our successive Police Commissioners we do not know. But their defence of high prices is certainly not based upon superior quality of our local taxi service. Nor is it indeed based upon any assumption that our local taxi service is better than it is in other cities.

The Marathon Runners

In Almost Every Human Activity There Is Willingness to Perform Great Labor for Rewards Other Than Money

We wonder how many people have reflected upon the terrible sacrifice which the runners in the Marathon race are obliged to make, to cover the distance at all; and the long, patient training they have to give themselves even to qualify for the race. And we wonder how many people have considered what bearing these sacrifices have upon one of the deepest problems of the modern, economic and social and political world.

Those who justify our present economic and social and political status, with its awful inequalities, in which generally the private possession of wealth gives economic, social and political power, however it may be acquired, rest their justification generally upon the assumption that unless men are allowed to acquire the possession of wealth as a reward for their efforts they will make no effort and that the world will slip back into a state of stagnation through the lazy instincts of man.

In other words, it is contended by those who defend the present economic and social condition that there is no substitute for the individual acquisition of wealth as an incentive to social or economic service. There is no man who ever acquired a million and by his acquisition threatened the stability of our republic who ever had to work as hard for it during a given period who ever had to sustain the bodily pain, the bodily agony that is sustained by those men who trained and ran that twenty-five-mile Marathon race over hills on hard and bad roads.

Without doubt, many of them have shortened their lives by the efforts they made in that race. What was their reward? What did they work for? Not for money; not for anything but social praise, for social distinction, for the pride of winning a race that attracted public attention and commanded public respect.

It is the same with boys who work in our colleges and preparatory schools. Some work far into the night to achieve leadership in their classes. Others strain themselves to their utmost to achieve leadership in athletics. All for praise, for distinction. Each laboring for the distinction which they prize most, or rather for distinction in the direction of the resultant of the influence of their aptitude for athletics or scholarship, and the degree of pride which they have in winning distinction in either.

In almost every human activity we can find evidence of willingness to perform great labor for rewards quite distinct from money. It seems almost blasphemous to assume that Providence would have so made human character as to make it impossible for the use of human capacity for the highest development of society without the incentive to monopolize the wealth of this world.

Real Science STICKS

It Will Be Remembered When Coue Is Forgotten

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Dr. Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute made a statement that will be remembered when Coueism and ten thousand other schemes for imaginary healing are forgotten. Dr. Flexner said that insulin, a remedy made of an extract from the pancreas, discovered by Dr. Banting, a young Canadian of no great experience, promises to conquer diabetes, a disease that has killed millions, and hitherto considered hopeless.

Slowly science makes its way, step by step, up the mountainside of knowledge. Vaccination conquered smallpox. One antitoxi conquers diphtheria, another typhoid. Discovery of the mosquito's germ-carrying villainy puts an end to yellow fever, and so progress goes on.

NEW PLANE WILL FLAP WINGS

LONDON, April 23.—In a Wimbledon garden is to be found an air machine which is quite unlike any other in the world. The man who has made the machine is a French engineer, M. Passat. He calls it a helithopiane, and several well-known people in aviation who have seen it demonstrated by the inventor speak enthusiastically.

Sixteen small wings are provided for, in sets of four. Each set revolves vertically in the manner of a windmill. In the process of revolving each wing comes up at a neutral angle, but on the downward action becomes horizontal.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Mexico and Russia

Editor Boston American:

In your editorial columns of April 17, under the heading, "Mexico Has a Real President," you comment on General Obregon's answer to some remarks made by Vice-President Calvin Coolidge. When Mr. Coolidge said that "Mexico is a second Russia, marching hundreds of years behind civilization," he spoke the truth. All broad-minded Mexicans who respect the truth, however much it may hurt, agree with Vice-President Coolidge.

When the President of Mexico claims that the "Socialism" he represents "expresses the will of 90 per cent. of the Mexican people," he merely intends to offer an apology (regardless of its accuracy) for two years of miserable miranda, which has failed to win the approbation of the government of the United States. The American people will always frown upon barbarity, whether it be found in Russia or in Mexico.

Lastly, President Obregon's boast that "Mexico does not need the United States or Europe" is another example of that sort of vain bravado which frequently came from the Russian Foreign Office during the recent trial of the Roman Catholic prelates.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Brown Jersey Suit

Editor Helping Hand:

I cannot speak too much in praise of the wonderful work you are accomplishing. I have a good brown jersey suit, size 38; jersey overblouse, size 36; fur necklace, two pairs long curtains, two pairs sash curtains, two georgette crepe waists, size 36; nine dresses to fit a girl six or seven, many with bloomers to match. Also for an infant: two pairs woolen stockings, two pairs booties, two flannel bands, two pure wool sweaters. Hope this helps someone, and I will have another list next week. Three cheers for the Helping Hand Editor. MRS. R. S.

ED. NOTE—Seems as though those who did the most themselves were always cheering the most for us. You will be put in touch with Mrs. B. M., who is worrying about baby clothes for a prospective arrival, and with Mrs. E. W., who has had to face unemployment and sickness at the same time. Thank you.

Twin Stroller

Editor Helping Hand:

Noticed in the paper a week ago that someone wanted a twin stroller. I will gladly give mine if wanted at this time.

J. M. McG.

ED. NOTE—Single and twin strollers and carriages are always wanted. Thank you. You will be put in touch with Mrs. A. McK., who needs one.

For Girls

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly forward me Kitty's address, as I have quite a few things that would be useful to her, including a coat and a hat. If she is supplied, please send me someone else's address that has girls between eight and thirteen. MRS. F. A. M.

ED. NOTE—Kitty is getting pretty well supplied, so we will send you H. C.'s address. Thank you.

Steamer Chair

I have a folding steamer chair in fair condition which I will give to F. C. 2. F. E. J.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. She will be put in touch with you.

Plea From Gloucester

Editor Helping Hand:

Do you help any little boy or girl in Gloucester? If I am not too far away, will you send me some little dresses or anything in the line of clothing for a little girl ten years old, and my little brother? He is six years old. We have no father, and we are the smallest of the family. Kindly help us if you can. Please don't put my whole name in the paper, as the boys and girls would holler at me. N. C.

Widow and Three

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if some of your readers could help a widow with three children. The little ones as well as herself are just destitute for clothes. A girl eight years old runs errands and with the few pennies she gets helps to buy school clothes. There is also a boy six and a girl two, and if someone had a stroller this woman could put it to great advantage. I think your column is just a wonder and, as I am doing my Spring cleaning, will be able to help some mothers with large girls. MRS. L.

For Rugs

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will please let me know how to communicate with Mrs. E. B. A., who writes she is a shut-in and would like some old gingham for wash braided rugs, I would very much like to supply her with these, as I have many odds and ends in the factory. L. S.

ED. NOTE—Her address will be sent you, and I know she will be very grateful for the cloth.

Wants a Bike

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little boy nine years old, and I have been wanting a bike, but my mother said she didn't have money enough to buy me one that cost too much, but if she could get one cheap she would pay for it. You know she cannot pay very much, as I have three brothers and two sisters, so you see that is a lot of us to take care of, but gee, I would like to have one just the same, and hope some one will have one that they don't need. TOMMY.

Please Call at Office

ED. NOTE—If John, the newsboy who asked for a suit of clothes in a letter published in the Helping Hand April 20, will come to the office of the Circulation Department of the Boston American it will be appreciated.

Clothes for Girl

Editor Helping Hand:

I want to thank you and J. D. McK. for sending me the books. I have some clothes which will fit the sixteen-year-old girl who asked for them, a Winter coat size 42, some boots size 5, two sleeveless sweaters and cape for boy twelve and a serge coat. I think it was Elizabeth who asked for a middy blouse. I have one and some skirts. MRS. L. P.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with L. S., a sixteen-year-old girl, and with E. B. D., who can use the other things.

Infants' Clothes Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a great many infants' clothes and a few rompers and dress and coat, etc., for a year-old girl. Also some small pieces of yard goods which could be used to advantage. Will gladly send package to anyone needing these articles. M. H. A.

ED. NOTE—You will be put in touch with Mrs. C. W. H., who is much in need of clothes for her baby. Thank you.

Would Like Canary

Editor Helping Hand:

You are doing a very wonderful work, and I want to help a little if I can. I am sending an itemized list of what I have collected at present, but shall have more to offer in the future. If some reader is going away to live where she cannot keep a canary bird and has one to offer that is a good singer, I would like to get it for an invalid lady who is almost a cripple from rheumatism. We would be willing to make some small aprons in exchange. MISS E. A. B.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with Mrs. E. M. P., who will greatly appreciate the things you offer.

U. S. FOREST SERVICE FINDS A BILLION DOLLAR WORK

By Herbert Kaufman

The matter concerns you, too. Anything that affects national resources is a public concern.

President Harding will address the editors and owners, statesmen, economists and experts in every field discuss problems of pressing importance. But paper will be in the foreground of their thoughts.

Trees feed printing presses. Year by year our timber areas diminish without replenishment. That sends paper prices up. And lumber costs. And house rents.

W. V. Boice of the United States Forest Service discovers a worse devastator than the woodman's axe. The spruce bug worm has destroyed half as much pulp material in Quebec alone as mills here and in Canada have used since they began production.

Seventy-five million cords ruined in a single province—billion dollars gone to waste. Forest fires hardly cost more. Conservation is in swaddling clothes; so is common sense.

Peoples will some day learn that a dollar spent in precaution will regularly save ten lost through blights and carelessness.

A Tempest in a Sugar Bowl

The President hears that the tariff is not responsible for sugar advances. His own board says so.

It could hardly be expected that an administration responsible for such an indefensible tax on a common necessity would play Indian-giver with Senator Smoot and his beet-growing constituents. Politics must have a few pork barrels.

No further steps will be taken to drag profiteering hands out of the national kitchen until Colonel Hayward has made his case against exchange gamblers. The net has been cast, but even high officials predict it won't hold.

Two Judges on the Job

A Federal Court has just put eight manufacturers in jail and seasoned the sentence with $178,000 worth of fines, distributed among twenty-one corporations—not a tittle of the amount gouged out of the public before their price-fixing conspiracy was smashed.

Little slaps at dividends don't discourage extortion. It takes a pair of prison shoes to pinch a profiteer. Archibald M. Maddock, head of a prominent Trenton pottery, draws ten months in the Essex County Penitentiary and pays $5,000 cash. That's the way to hold down the cost of housing. Plasterers next.

Judge Julien W. Mack decides that State prosecutors may have access to books of bankrupt brokers to find if orders have been bucketed and funds converted. Certain Wall Street houses will now start to study p's and q's. Lambs will be sheared as heretofore, but not so many slaughtered.

Emperor Simmons Discovers New York

"The most un-American centre" is at last located. William J. Simmons, Ku Klux emperor, drops the hooded cloak to wear the mantle of Jeremiah. He warns New York to watch its tower of Babel.

Seven million persons live within the shadow of the Singer tower and only 1,100,000 of them are "native-born Protestant whites."

But he doesn't indicate how many of the 7,000,000 are loyal, useful, naturalized citizens. War Department records and French battlefields know, though.

Mr. Simmons wants to halt immigration. So would many others—but not to exclude men because of breed and creed.

He makes no mention of Florida peonage camps or how to halt industrial slavery and its lash. There's a neighborhood for a few Klux whipping forays. Folk who live by brutality should have a taste of it. Similis similibus curantur.

Lower Prices for Cables and Milk

Radio and cable clash. Western Union cuts transocean rates 20 per cent. to meet competition. Week-end letters to London for a dollar. And that's just a start. Overseas communication is headed for the bargain counter. Air currents cost nothing. Before long Paris and Yokohama will be regular exchanges on everybody's international wireless phone.

A French veterinary talks of life extension for animals. Dairy cows will last as long as man, if operated by Professor Boronoff's eternal youth system. Cheaper milk for tomorrow. Producers surely can't expect to charge as much when their herds last so much longer.

Fat Men, Ice Water and Whales

Cheerful news for heavy folk, too. Ventilating engineers, after extensive experiment, find that fat people stand heat better than thin men.

They also advise workers in high temperatures to drink as much ice water as they please. Contrary to popular belief, there isn't a cramp in a quart of it—maybe.

An American dreadnaught is challenged by a Caribbean whale; the whale loses the fight. A man-made submarine would have done better. Nature didn't think of torpedoes when she designed the warriors of the deep and Washington forgot aeroplanes when so many millions were misspent upon cumbersome battle fleets.

Two $10,000,000 hulls are sentenced to the junk heap by the disarmament agreement. At least we saved the cost of finishing ships that would finally have been sunk by aerial bombs—and no maybe about that.
